PENAL REFORM PLANS PENDING . . .

Many Senators Adopt Wait-And-See Attitude

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Many senators are taking a wait-and-see attitude on penal reform programs pending the recommendations of the Legislature's Judiciary Committee.

Nearly one-half of the lawmakers who responded to a survey undertaken by The Star either declined to express any views on correctional reform or said they will wait for more information.

Several including Sen. W. H. Hasebrook of West Point, said they want to see what kind of legislation emerges from the judiciary unit which directed an in-depth study of the matter this year.

"I shall be guided by the recommendations of the Judiciary Committee," Hasebrook declared.

Want To Wait

Among senators who will wait for more information are Eugene Mahoney of Omaha, Wally Barnett of Lincoln, Ramey Whitney of Chappell and George Syas of Omaha.

Sen. John Savage of Omaha views the issue with some skepticism.

"I think that we should spend more time and effort to keep people from becoming inmates and less effort on how to make criminals more comfortable while paying a debt for their crimes," Savage said.

"Making the surroundings less desirable than a country club atmosphere might deter some from becoming inmates.

Show Disadvantages
Those that are clamoring should concentrate their efforts by pointing out to the future generation some of the disadvantages of a life of crime."

Senator-elect Gary Anderson of Axtell has a considerably different view.

"I hope effective correctional reform will be one of the key items of legislation coming out of the 1973 Legislature," he said.

"I believe we must do this first by changing our popular attitude from regarding prison as a place where a person 'pays his debt' to society to a place where punishment and attempts to change a person's pattern of life receive equal emphasis."

For Quick Action
Judiciary Chairman Sen. Roland Luedtke of Lincoln believes the recommendations of the state's correctional reform consultants "should be implemented as quickly as possible."

In keeping with the plan, he said, he will favor construction of new medium security prisons in both Lincoln and Omaha.

Members of the judiciary unit are generally enthusiastic about penal reform.

Facilities Backed

"I agree with the whole penal reform program and would help to fund new facilities in Omaha and Lincoln," Sen. Harold Simpson of Lincoln noted.

(Penal reform consultants have recommended location of medium security institutions in both Lincoln and Omaha.)

"I will strongly support and work for programs which tend toward rehabilitation, rather than buildings which merely warehouse men at considerable cost to the state," Sen. John DeCamp of Neligh said.

"I'm certain we should fund a new medium security complex," Sen. Walter Epke of York said. But needs should focus on improved programming, he pointed out.

Not Better

"I am anxious to get a new Men's Reformatory started." Sen. Fred Carstens of Beatrice declared. But, he suggested, "the Lincoln-Omaha scheme is only to get the votes from Lincoln and Omaha, not because it's better" than locating one medium security prison in one community.

Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff pledged his support for penal reform efforts.

Simpson, DeCamp, Epke, Carstens and Carpenter are members of the Judiciary Committee.

Senator-elect Ralph Kelly of Grand Island said the best penal reform plan for Nebraska would be "a complete package," while Senator-elect Dennis Rasmussen of Scottsbluff suggested that the major emphasis should be on training for the prisoners.

Favors Construction

"I believe that we have to train the people involved so they can take their place in society," Sen. Leslie Stull of Alliance agreed. If new facilities are needed, he said, he will support their construction.

"Prisons need to be more humane," Sen. Richard Proud of Omaha said. "I am for modernizing them."

Sen. Maurice Kremer of Aurora said statistics indicate that "our present programs lack much in accomplishing the purpose intended," so other methods should be tried.

Rehabilitation

"There should be more emphasis placed on the rehabilitation of prisoners," Sen. Harold Moylan of Omaha said.

"I would be in favor of modernization of facilities or new ones to promote this end."

Programs need to be designed "to help criminals to be rehabilitated," Sen. David Stehner of Omaha insisted.

"I fear that too many are interested in buildings — and not people."

Regime Forces People To Flee

. . . BODIES DECAYING

Managua, Nicaragua (UPI) — The government cut off food supplies to force survivors to leave this earthquake-shattered city before decaying bodies buried under the rubble cause an epidemic, a Red Cross official said Monday.

Most of the survivors of Saturday's earthquake in this Nicaraguan capital of 300,000 have fled the city, but the government feared disease could strike the holdouts who refused to abandon their homes.

Death Guess Varies

Estimates of the death toll varied widely. One official estimated the toll would be 3,000 to 5,000. The government earlier had estimated the toll would be 5,000 to 10,000, with 20,000 injured. Others predicted a higher toll.

The government ordered the Red Cross to stop serving at emergency food stations in the 4,000-square-block area that the stubborn residents refused to leave.

"If we give them food, they will stay," said Jorge Crojuc of the Mexican Red Cross. "It is against our mission not to give them food and care, but the government has ordered this."

Crojuc said other food and aid stations were being established in safer areas outside the city to aid the thousands of hungry, homeless and injured.

"We have an airplane hangar full of food and medical supplies, so aid will not stop," Crojuc said. "Meanwhile, we must provoke the people to anger so they will leave."

The relief coordinator, Gen. Luis Rodriguez Somoza, said, "We have to empty the area. We are afraid of an epidemic."

No Water

There were still no water or electrical services Monday. The smell of decaying bodies hung heavy in the air in the center of town, and smoke still rose from the smouldering ruins of buildings.

"We have sufficient supplies of plasma, blood and drugs, but we need large amounts of distilled drinking water," one doctor said.

The government has ordered that all bottled water and drinks be distributed free, but the supply is small and dwindling and cannot serve the needs of hospitals set up in parks and at other places in the city.

Diplomats Moved

The diplomatic corps has been transferred to San Jose, Costa Rica, while it is decided whether to rebuild Managua or build another city at a different site. An earthquake in Managua in 1931 killed about 1,000 persons.

From the air Monday, a depression could be seen in the earth in the western side of the ruined city.

National guard troops fired into the air to chase looters.

Somoza denied rumors that heavy artillery and high explosives were used Monday to demolish the remaining structures in the stricken area. These included many banks and business and government offices.

State Officials Ponder Federal Fund Cutbacks

By BOB GUNTHER

Star Staff Writer

President Richard Nixon calls the new fiscal policies for his second term "belt-tightening."

State officials, though, see it as more of a stranglehold.

Call it what they will, the effect appears to be the same: fewer federal dollars for Nebraska next year and maybe longer.

Nixon's professed objective is to hold federal spending below the $250 billion in order to check inflation and prevent a federal tax increase.

Last fiscal year state government received roughly $140 million in federal funds (excluding highway money), according to Gus Lieske, state director of administrative services. What the future holds in store for Nebraska's level of federal funding, Lieske is not sure.

Next year's total will be boosted by the much-heralded $14.6 million in revenue-sharing the state has received.

However, Gov. J. James Exon and some legislators plan that those funds will be used to fund a real estate tax reduction and not the increased services as some state officials had hoped.

A decrease in federal funds for services could affect each program differently depending on how the funds are used, Lieske said. If a decrease came, for instance, in funds that are used for a special purpose, such as grants, Lieske indicated the cuts would not affect state financing. The program just would not exist.

However, if the cut came to a program which counted on federal dollars in its base, such as education, then the state would be faced with the unpleasant choice of picking up the expense or abandoning the program.

Where the cuts will come, if they do materialize is not certain as yet. State officials appear in agreement, though, that the first to be affected will be the agencies dealing in human services.

Lieske mentioned three areas where it has been rumored that Nixon's budget knife will fall: the University of Nebraska's College of Agriculture, the state highway program and the University's research grants.

Francis Schmehl, NC's research administrator, said, "It's going to be a very tough year to get funds."

As evidence he pointed to a freeze on National Science Foundation grants (which he hopes will be temporary) and the firing of the directors of the National Institute of Health and the National Institute of Mental Health.

During fiscal 1972, the University of Nebraska system received $15.6 million in grants, contracts, research and training programs.

The state's highway building program is threatened by congressional efforts to change the formula for allocation of Highway Trust Funds. The proposed change would divert some tax dollars from highway building to mass transit projects in metropolitan areas.

State Engineer Thomas Doyle has said this would mean a proportionately smaller share for Nebraska and has adamantly opposed efforts to dip into gasoline tax monies for mass transit purposes.

But there are other agencies which will be similarly effected.

Like Doyle, State Education Commissioner Cecil Stanley is "sitting on needles and pins" awaiting Congressional and White House action in January.

Four education appropriation bills were vetoed by the President during the last Congress, and Stanley reports that a number of programs are operating now on what is called a "continuing resolution." That means a program continues to be funded in line with its previous appropriation until a funding provision is forthcoming.

Those programs now operating on continuing resolutions are the vocational education field, and the Titles I (educationally handicapped), II (library), III (innovative teaching techniques) and V (administration).

Those programs make up the bulk of the $32.5 million the State Department of Education received in federal funds last fiscal year.

"We're really uncertain as to where we stand next year," Stanley said.

In the area of economic development, State Director Stan Matzke noted that the Office of Management and the Budget has frozen all federal aid to economically depressed areas until further notice.

Matzke and his staff are working on a plan to entitle the state to between $4-$6 million in federal money for construction of vocational technical colleges to train people in those areas.

While he welcomes the additional time to come up with a proposal which will gain federal approval, Matzke said the freeze has put the whole project in a state of limbo.

The knife has already fallen at the State Department of Environmental Control, and the State Welfare Department has been threatened with a loss of $1.9 million if it doesn't improve its efforts to control underpayments and overpayments to welfare recipients.

The Nixon Administration allocated Nebraska $7 million for construction of municipal sewage treatment plants for fiscal 1974. That is less federal funds than are being spent during the current fiscal year and less than half of what Congress authorized in its override of Nixon's veto.

DEC Director James L. Higgins has estimated that the fund cut will set the sewage plant program back by three years. He said $27 million worth of construction could have been started in fiscal 1974 if the funds were available.

Jeff Kushner, executive secretary of the Nebraska Commission on Drugs has also girded himself for a bleak funding picture next year.

Drug abuse programs in Nebraska are currently receiving $650,000, chiefly in Omaha.

"We had hoped to expand next year, but it looks as though we'll be lucky to get $500,000," Kushner said.

One grant request by Omaha and two by Lincoln were turned down recently which would've funded comprehensive drug abuse programs in the two cities. Lincoln's request totaled $132,000.

"Six months ago the National Institute of Mental Health attitude on grant applications was 'be creative, be innovative.' Now they say don't come for anything but straight treatment money," Kushner said.

Marcos Pardons 327 Prisoners

Manila (UPI) — President Ferdinand E. Marcos Christmas Day pardoned 327 prisoners on recommendation of the Board of Pardons and Parole, the Department of Public Information announced.

The government announcement said the chief executive also issued a presidential decree Monday creating an agrarian reform fund.

Under the decree, the fund is to finance or guarantee the payment of farm lots acquired under a presidential proclamation of Oct. 21, which extended agricultural credit support to achieve a high level of production in the government's land reform program.

a prediction that an earthquake will destroy their city at 9 a.m. on Jan. 4. The prediction was made by Reuben Greenspan, a 67-year-old recluse in San Francisco, who has been, it is said, correctly predicting earthquakes as far back as 1965 and as recently as 1971.

Health Spa Fraud Probed

New York — Consumer-protection spokesmen here and in other metropolitan areas are investigating complaints that the $20-million-a-year health spa and reducing-salon industry is permeated with fraud. Consumer agencies have focused their investigations on allegedly deceptive advertising, high-pressure sales techniques and long-term ironclad contracts used by the health-spa and weight-reducing sponsors.

Albany, N.Y. — After a year-long inquiry into municipal purchasing practices in Albany, the State Investigation Commission has charged the Albany Democratic political machine with exercising "paralyzing" control over virtually every aspect of the city's life, at a cost to taxpayers of millions of dollars of irregularly diverted revenues.

U.S. Extends Bombing Halt In Hopes Of Resuming Secret Talks

Saigon (AP) — The United States extended Tuesday a bombing halt across North Vietnam, reportedly to give President Nixon time to try to resume deadlocked secret peace talks with Hanoi.

U.S. sources, confirming the extension beyond 24 hours, said they did not know how long it would last and cautioned that the bombing could be resumed at any hour. But just after midnight Monday, Saigon time, they said no orders had been issued for air attacks against the North.

Hour By Hour

The bombing halt apparently is being extended hour by hour while Nixon seeks a response from Hanoi, the sources said.

"I would think our government would try to play this as long as it can," one said. "I would think they are telling the North Vietnamese we'll knock this off if they will sit down and talk seriously."

The U.S. Command refused comment.

At Key Biscayne, Fla., the White House refused to confirm or deny the extension of the holiday bomb halt. "We are not going to have any comment from here on operations in Vietnam," a spokesman said.

Japan Grants China Credit

Tokyo (UPI) — In an historic shift in its China trade policy, the government Monday decided to make funds of the official Export-Import Bank available to five companies seeking to sell factory equipment to China.

All five deals involve sale of chemical or synthetic fiber plants.

The ministry of international trade and industry told the manufacturers the bank would participate in deals to sell the plants to China on five-year payment plans at 6% annual interest. The Chinese would be expected to make down payments of 20% or more.

It signaled an end to Japan's long-time policy of dealing with China only on a cash basis.

Former prime minister Shigeru Yoshida promised the Nationalist Chinese government on Taiwan in 1963 that the Japanese government would not grant credit to China.

That policy was outdated last Sept. 29 when Japan extended diplomatic recognition to China, and withdrew it from the Taiwan government headed by President Chiang Kai-shek.

Japan reopened trade with China in 1961.

Emmett Kelly Jr. Takes Up As A Clown Where Father Left Off

World News

Rochester, N.Y. — Emmett Kelly Jr. was redressing his false nose, working on it with great care, just as he had a thousand times before, and his father had, say, 10,000 times before.

"My boots," Miles said. "They cost $250 and the leather comes from France. Do you know that I shine them after every performance?"

This was at the Emmett Kelly Jr. circus, which is a small collection of performers who have been together only a few months. Tent shows are nearly gone, diminishing forever the old way of a circus trouper's life, and so Kelly's people go from town to town in cars and trailers, playing in auditoriums and theaters.

From Dec. 26 until Dec. 31 they will be in New York for the first time, appearing at the Brooklyn Academy of Music. They will bring with them their animals and apprentices and, being less temperamental than most show business people, a good deal of amiability.

They were recently in Rochester, having already played Utica, and worried about whether or not they would get there on time.

Concerns In Order

"Where's the dressing room? I'll never be ready. Hi," Tina Hansen said when she got in. She was putting her concerns in the proper order, which is what circus people do. Soon, wearing spangled scanties, she would be dangling from a small trapeze.

A chimpanzee, meanwhile, would be watching her from the wings, a bear that weighs 750 pounds would be waiting patiently to do his turn, and Kelly would be feeling pleased with himself because he had just worked out a small piece of stage business with Miles.

The new business worked this way: Kelly had been on stage with a broom, sweeping up imaginary debris from the platform on which the Blue Streaks, the roller skating team, were working.

When he walked off, he swatted Miles across the tailcoat with the broom. It got a laugh.

"Say, that's good. You should leave it in," John Hansen said to Kelly in the wings.

Hansen is married to Tina Hansen, and with their daughter, Diana, who is 7, they call themselves Les Thinks and do a trampoline act. In Utica the other day, Diana had done a double somersault for the first time, which pleased her parents no end.

"I met my wife at the Tivoli in Copenhagen," Hansen said. "We were doing trapeze acts. We would never push Diana into being like us, into being in the circus, but she seems to enjoy it so much."

She's Amiable Too

Indeed, Diana was wandering about, being amiable. "Uncle Bob," she said to Bob Bell, who is one-half of the Blue Streaks. "I'm having trouble with my skates."

Bell, who had just come off stage with his partner, Louise Edwards, fixed Diana's skates. Bell, who is also amiable, had begun skating professionally when he was a boy, and then had stayed off wheels, as he calls them, for 13 years.

In fact, he had become a mailman in California, where he had met Miss Edwards, a former dancer, who was working as a secretary.

"I had to prove to myself that I could still do it," Bell said, sucking in his midsection. "When I talked Louise into working with me, boy, you should have seen the paunch I had. It's coming off, though."

Meanwhile, Pamela Rosaire was sitting off in a room, along with a horse called Tony, a bear called Gentle Ben, and three chimpanzees. The chimpanzees were Judy, Thoto and Jai. Miss Rosaire, whose family handles the animal acts, communicates only a little less well with animals than Dr. Doolit.

Own Personality

"Chimps have a language and personalities all their own," she said. "I got my first chimp to train when I was 9. He weighs 200 pounds now and I had to put him in a zoo. He's 23 years old, and I still go to visit him whenever I can."

Thoto, meanwhile, was drinking a cup of coffee. A man with a cigarette wandered in and offered Thoto a drag. Thoto accepted it. He inhales.

"Thoto is really just a ham," Miss Rosaire said. "The other day he pulled the caps off all the medicine bottles. Once he swallowed a whole bottle of aspirin. He freaks out on cough medicine, too, when he can get it."

On stage, Miles was making a great thing about taking off his white gloves. A really good ringmaster can be dramatic about nearly anything, and he could easily be confused

Miles was being dramatic about taking off his gloves.

During a performance Miles always stands at attention, never glancing away from an act. He has the rich, ripe voice of a ringmaster is supposed to have, and when he announces an act, he is never monosyllabic if it is at all possible to be polysyllabic.

Announces Anything

He can, in fact, announce nearly anything. Once, on an airplane, the pilot asked Miles to announce the appearance of the Grand Canyon. He did. Once, with a circus in Oklahoma, Miles saw a cyclone off in the distance, heading toward the crowd. He announced that, too.

"And coming up with a roar, folks, is an old-fashioned twister," Miles had more or less said, and then he had swallowed a whole bottle of aspirin. He freaks out on cough medicine, too, when he can get it."

So now Miles was announcing Derrick Rosaire, Pamela's father, who was standing in the wings with Gentle Ben. Besides weighing 750 pounds, Gentle Ben is 8 feet long, and he could easily be confused

"It's not the same thing, you know," Rosaire said while Miles was announcing him. Then, very cheerfully he said. "That ringmaster exaggerates all the time, you know," and walked out on the stage with Gentle Ben.

EVENTS

IN PERSPECTIVE

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

What the future might be is certainly coming more and more to be anybody's guess. Of course, the immediate future is this week and not so very complicated. This is the week that you trek back to the stores with those Christmas goodies that are not right for you.

It might be a medium-sized sweater when you wear a large or it might be a necktie so awful that you just can't bring yourself to wear it. Whatever it is, this is exchange week for local merchants and we do not envy them the task.

But the future we are really talking about is that which will shape itself over a period of years. For instance, another report has now told us that vast numbers of Americans are unhappy in their jobs and need something done for them.

If you can believe the reports, the nation is composed of millions of people who need a weekly session with a psychiatrist because the laborers are giving them all sorts of sociological problems and hangups. The real solution, however, is said to be in giving the working man more responsibility in his job.

Thus, the worker himself would help determine what he did and how he did it. That could bring a big change in things. The business conferences that now take place on the executive level might be replaced with conferences at the worker level.

The job for the boss or foreman in such a conference would be to satisfy the creative demands of the worker. That, in turn, may create a whole new profession, people who know how to make workers happy.

Well, we are not surprised that a lot of people do not particularly like what they are doing but we doubt that anyone has yet come up with the right solution. For one thing, we need to do a far better job in the beginning in getting people into lines of work that fit their abilities and ambitions.

What we are talking about has long been a popular idea among the youth. They are always talking about "doing their thing," which means that they do what they want rather than what might seem more practical or expected of them.

Maybe they are right. Maybe we do need more people simply doing their thing and then they might not end up on some job that bores them to death. But it means life style values that will have to change a lot from what they are and we are not overly confident of this transition's taking place.

Will people really settle for what they want to do as opposed to what they might have in terms of material goods? Will they sacrifice all the modern conveniences for the sake of a job that leaves them with peace of mind? Maybe they will but we really see very little evidence of this.

And what about the future in other areas? The cover of Time Magazine finally said it all last week. Spread over a horn of plenty were the words that eating may be bad for you. We have now come all the way to the thought that maybe we should not be eating anything at all.

The Time story really did not reflect quite this position but it did end up leaving you uncertain of what you can eat for the sake of your good health. The problem with not eating at all, of course, is that you would have difficulty staying alive.

Man, unfortunately, is not a perpetual motion machine. He is constantly using up energy that must be replaced and that energy comes from food, not from an electrical charge.

Now, if somebody could figure out a way of charging us all up like you charge up your car battery, we might have it made but that is going to take some kind of scientific breakthrough. In the meantime, we must be content with the gnawing feeling that we are all eating ourselves into an early grave.

Isn't it ironic and somewhat typical of mankind that part of the world starves to death while another part eats itself to death? Well, the fellow who finally comes up with a substitute for food is certainly going to have it made. We only hope that life will continue to be as much fun as it can be today.

Civil Liberties Go Slightly Overboard

NEW YORK — Maybe it's the Scrooge influence or maybe I've read one too many headlines of terror and violence lately, but it strikes me the civil liberties folks are going slightly overboard in their pursuit of potential discrimination.

There are times when their protests seem more like narrow-minded nitpicking than an honest concern for the basic human rights of all people.

I yield to no one in my reverence for their belief that every citizen is entitled to an equal chance to education, employment and voting privileges. But when they're willing to risk hundreds of lives to protect a criminal's right to escape jail on a technicality, that's when they begin to lose me.

All this outcry against searching air travelers for weapons impresses a lot of us frequent customers of the big jets as plain common sense. Not as the civil libertarians claim a violation of the Fourth Amendment's guarantee against unreasonable searches and seizures.

It's difficult in these days of hacking fever to see anything "unreasonable" about frisking passengers and their carry-on packages. And who when you get right down to it is going to object? An innocent traveler with nothing to hide?

And if somebody is carrying illegal goods — or feels such a search is against his principles — he can simply refuse to submit to frisking. All he has to do is turn in his ticket (no questions asked) and take a bus to wherever he wants to go, his civil liberties safely intact.

What really bugs the civil libertarians is that 4,000 of the Intent Still News Management

No matter how hard White House telecommunications director Clay Whitehead tries to gloss it over and turn it around, the intent of the Nixon administration's proposed legislation for judging television news broadcasts remains clear.

The announcement that under the proposal local station managers would be responsible for the balance and taste of network news and entertainment came last Monday. Last Thursday Whitehead said the administration's intent was to insure that the public gets to hear "all kinds of views," and not to impose its own point of view on broadcast stations. He said he believes the Federal Communications Commission wants to pull back from federal regulation and allow more community participation, and thus the proposals would be "a much more neutralizing kind of process." "We would like to have the voice of the community heard in what is broadcast," Whitehead said.

That's a bunch of doubletalk. The voice of the community is heard now, at least as far as entertainment is concerned. Local stations and networks, shuffle programs and withdraw them and replace them as they attempt to read what the public wants. Shaping news broadcasts and commentary around what is believed to be publicly acceptable is a tougher job and it shouldn't be done to any great degree. News should be presented truthfully and views presented straight from the shoulder and then people can accept or reject what they hear as they see fit.

How can the FCC fairly judge how the local stations have judged the voice of the community? It can't. It boils down to Whitehead's earlier statement that under the proposal, local stations will be held accountable at license renewal time for the balance and taste of network news and entertainment presentations. The threat is clear. It's still blackmail.

System Permits Criticism

Popular discontent with his war policy was one of the factors which drove President Johnson to his decision not to seek another term. Private citizen Nixon won his first four-year lease on the White House in part because he criticized the handling of the Vietnam war and said he had a plan to end it. He probably thought he had a right to speak out on the subject.

In the past four years, however, it has become fashionable in ruling circles to caution the masses not to criticize the President's conduct of a war that still continues on the grounds that he knows best how to produce peace. During the election campaign those who sought a quicker settlement were accused of sabotaging peace and of almost treasonable activity.

Throughout his first term and into the immediate post-election period, a majority of the American people supported the President's policy and seemed willing to give him a little more time to iron out the final details. They may not be willing to continue that support now, but the Vietnam war is not entirely the point.

The point is that citizens have a right to criticize executive decisions and policies and anybody that believes otherwise doesn't really understand or appreciate the American system.

The rules of the game allow for the party out of power to criticize a presidential decision, as Nebraska Democratic Chairman Hess Dyas did following the Nixon decision to resume heavy bombing of North Vietnam. And the rules are loose enough to permit the party in power to criticize the critic as Republican State Chairman Milan Bish did in admonishing Dyas for his remarks on the theory that Dyas is not an authority on the subject and should know better than to be presumptuous.

We agree with Dyas, however, that such a theory is contrary to the basic philosophy of our democratic government.

This has long been an executive war, but people do have the right to question it.

ANTHONY LEWIS

Kissinger, Unbruised Casualty

LONDON — The spread of cynicism in the United States, the loss of faith in the political process, can be traced back to a significant part to the election of 1964. A good many people felt afterward whether or not they articulated the thought, that they had been the victims of a deception.

A California judge agrees with them.

"In cases involving areas of great public concern," he ruled, "it is easy to succumb to the expediency of the moment and, contrary to the Constitution, adopt the principle that the end justifies the means."

Well, whee! And what about the rights of the people to "insure domestic tranquility" and promote the general welfare? That's in the Constitution too.

Opposition to airport searches is only one of a number of civil rights hassles that have cropped up lately. Some of the others border on the downright ridiculous.

Take the charge that employers who grant pregnancy leaves only to women are discriminating against men. Believe it or not, fathers are demanding paternity leaves so they can get paid while they stay home and help barp Junior.

It's their right, they claim, to leave their jobs and help out when they're needed at home. (And, if this catches on, somebody's going to have to go to bat for the rights of the boss.)

Kissinger is a smart and careful man. One cannot imagine him using such language lightly — language with the definitive, even proud ring of the word "obvious." He knows far too much about the history of Vietnam to have based such flat statements on mere wishful thinking. He must have believed as he said, that peace was "within reach in a matter of weeks or less."

What went wrong?

According to Kissinger, in his latest White House press conference it was the other side that made difficulties. Le Dac Tho kept trying to reopen settled questions of principle. There were now important disagreements about the size and powers of the proposed international truce supervision team and about language reflecting Saigon's claim to sovereignty over all of South Vietnam.

Of course Hanoi may have been difficult when the talks resumed after the American election. The whole history of negotiations in Vietnam makes a straight-forward path to peace unlikely. But Kissinger's claim that it was all the other side's fault is pathetically unconvincing.

Consider the two issues that he now suggests are the sticking-points. The first, that of the truce supervision team, Kissinger treated lightly, indeed jocularly, at his news conference of Oct. 26. He quipped that this section of the draft agreement would "no doubt occupy graduate students for many years" and that "only my colleague, Ambassador William H. Sullivan, really understood it."

As for the Saigon government's claim to be the sole legal sovereign of all South Vietnam, the basic approach of the draft agreement negotiated that. For it was an agreement on a standstill cease-fire, with the two warring parties in the south continuing to control their own areas and committed to work toward an eventual political settlement.

Moreover, the draft agreement explicitly ruled out treating South Vietnam as a juridically independent country. The very first paragraph of the summary published by Hanoi Oct. 26, which Kissinger acknowledged as "a very fair account," said the United States would respect "the independence, sovereignty and territorial integrity of Vietnam as recognized by the 1954 Geneva agreements."

In other words, the draft

JACK ANDERSON

Chaos In Wake Of Agnes

WILKES-BARRE, Pa. — In the wake of Hurricane Agnes last June, the profiteers descended like vultures on the disaster area, preyed on the battered victims and hauled off their quick profits in suitcases.

Not far behind swarmed the bureaucrats who were supposed to administer the emergency programs. They quickly got entangled in their own red tape and, in desperation, hired the Boeing Corporation as management consultants to straighten out the snarl.

When we asked how much Boeing was costing the taxpayers, government spokesmen gave us several different figures, all under $1 million. Boeing finally acknowledged to us that the true figure was $1.177 million.

Housing and Urban Development officials meanwhile, contracted for more mobile home parks than were needed to house the homeless. More than $2 million, urgently needed elsewhere, was wasted on three sites that have never had a trailer on them.

One site, called Moon Lake, was 50% finished before the authorities realized they couldn't use it. The penalty clause for cancelling the contract equalled the cost of its completion, acknowledged Jack McGraw, the disaster housing director. Another unneeded site went uncomplicated, but the contractor had to be paid anyway.

HUD also ordered hundreds of trailer homes that were left empty. One press release boasted about the arrival of 50 units of prefab housing, just like that used to house the Olympic athletes in Munich. It made a great headline, which is all the taxpayers have to show for the $350,000 the 50 units cost.

When we asked McGraw about this, he conceded that no one has been placed in the housing yet. He thought it "might" be used as a community center.

McGraw learned that government employees were helping themselves to furniture intended for the flood victims. "It has come to my attention," he wrote on November 24, "that there may be employees who have borrowed and are utilizing surplus furniture from vacant HUD mobile homes . . . To avoid adverse criticism and publicity, all employees are hereby directed to return all furniture to Central Maintenance no later than December 10, 1972."

As the director noted in another memo, "The term HUD, for many residents of Pennsylvania, has become a term with negative connotations . . . A great deal of this image factor could have been avoided with a little common courtesy, patience and understanding and concern for human suffering."

We obtained access to the files, anyway. Taken together, the internal documents present a picture of utter chaos throughout the government's relief programs. Please add memos from Jack McGraw: "Employees' conduct in the building must be maintained"

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have been trying without success to find out where I may go to will my body to science so somebody may benefit from the various parts of my body that will no longer be of use to me.—R.E.

Dear Doctor: I know how to leave my body to medical research and it is acceptable to my close relatives and church, but there seems to be a difference of opinion on its value. I will leave mine to the medical school but not unless it is a really worthwhile idea.—L.S.H.

There are three worthwhile uses for bodies left to science.

1—Parts may be used for transplants (i.e., kidneys, eyes, etc.), of which only the cornea is used, bone for grafts).

2—if the person had a rare or puzzling disease, an autopsy may put at rest questions disturbing the family. But it is rare, indeed, that something of value is not learned by

3—Bodies on which autopsies are performed or have been used for organ transplants, cannot be used for teaching purposes, and bodies left for that purpose are left in a different way.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: A lot of people think that eating sweets produce worms in small children. What are some ways small children may contact eggs of these parasites?—L.J.

Sugar, of course, does NOT cause worms. The commonest worm is the pinworm, and the eggs are invisibly small. Children get the eggs on their fingers or under their fingernails, swallow them without realizing it and the worms hatch into pinworms.

There are, of course, other types of intestinal worms, but not nearly as common, and ordinarily conveyed by undercooked meat.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Last year I started to get red spots on my arms and legs. It seemed that a couple would come out every day. I'd get a feeling of a needle sticking me, and a little later the spot would appear. My doctors prescribed vitamin C and a vitamin with minerals, but also took a urine test which showed infection in the kidneys or bladder. After 10 days of medication, no more spots. He didn't actually pinpoint the cause of the spots, so could you explain what it could be?

Because the spots have started again.—Mrs. H.L.

Reaching out for a guess one possible explanation would be a form of purpura—that is, bleeding under the skin.

There are different causes of purpura, and one of them is infection. Thus in your case the infection in the urinary tract could be the answer. After all, the spots stopped when you were treated for that infection.

On impossible explanation would be a form of purpura, and one of them is infection. Thus in your case the infection in the urinary tract could be the answer. After all, the spots stopped when you were treated for that infection.

Shortage Of Money May Not Be All Bad

By ROBERT PETERSON

We have long assumed that the least contented elders are those with the least income. But here's a reader who pooh-poohs this ancient assumption and claims that those with the least income may derive the most day-to-day satisfaction.

"An old fellow with less money than he needs," writes a retired attorney, "has to scout around and find a little work to do. He's not picky when jobs are offered him, so he keeps busy."

"He has to hunt for bargains when he goes shopping. This gives him something purposeful to do and he succeeds in saving a buck here or there. He derives a radiant sense of accomplishment."

He can't afford to call in a carpenter or painter when the house needs repairs, so he uses his muscles and ingenuity to fix things as best he can. His house is mortgaged, but he looks forward to owning it one day. A little bus trip gives him real delight for he hasn't been around much and can't afford any long distance travel. And when he finds five dollars left over at the end of the month he glows with satisfaction.

"The ones to feel sorry for in retirement are those with enough income to live without lifting a finger. They don't feel much incentive to make shopping an adventure in saving pennies. They hire repairmen to fix the back porch or paint the house. They turn up their noses at the fund of jobs open to other less affluent older people so they sit in their comfortable upholstered chairs looking out the window and wonder what to do with themselves."

"They've long owned their home so they miss the great thrill of paying off the final installment on the mortgage. A five-dollar surplus at the end of the month means nothing to them. And a bus trip is a bore when you've been everywhere and thus have no further ven to travel."

A lot of elders will label the foregoing baloney. But this man's letter confirms that financial security does not necessarily guarantee personal satisfaction. The letter also confirms the grass-is-always-greener maxim for the poor will doubtless always envy the rich. And the rich in their boredom will always find something to envy about the poor.

Speaking of maxims, it's likely that many of us have been directly or indirectly in

Omahans Jailed After Police Told Of Pair's Plans

Omaha (AP) — Three-year-old Shirley Braymen and her 18-month-old sister Tina won't be spending this Christmas at home. Two Omahans were jailed after they told police they didn't want the children anymore.

Being held in city jail in lieu of $200 each were Lloyd Braymen, 41, and 22-year-old Shirley Ellison. Police reported. Police said they were booked on suspicion of endangering the welfare of a minor.

Authorities said cruiser officers brought the two adults and two children to police headquarters after a sister of Miss Ellison notified police that the pair planned to abandon the children.

Police said Miss Ellison and Braymen are not married.

American Library In Rumania Becomes A Popular Spot

• The New York Times

Bucharest, Rumania — In less than a year since its opening, the Biblioteca Americana (American Library) has become a sort of intellectual salon for Rumanians, who crowd the avant-garde center as if it were a watering hole in the Sahara.

The library is the only such United States cultural facility in a Communist country, apart from Yugoslavia, operating off American embassy premises.

It was opened last January under an agreement reached by President Nixon during his visit here in August, 1969. In turn, Rumania opened a library at Dag Hammarskjold Plaza in New York.

With no advertising except a two-foot-square display case outside on an iron fence, the American library has already attracted 4,000 members, about a third of them students.

The library has 7,000 books and receives 180 magazines and three newspapers, the New York Times, the Washington Star-News and the Christian Science Monitor. The book stacks are open to visitors, an innovation for Rumanians.

The cultural facility also has art exhibition halls, language classrooms, a theater and a music room. The music room in particular is filled throughout the day mainly by young people eager to listen to jazz and pop songs.

"The pressure from the young people is so great that we had to set aside one day just for older people who want to hear classical music," said William Lasalle, director of the library.

Prisoners Complaining About Dental Problems

... AT THE COUNTY-CITY JAIL

By GERRY SWITZER
Star Staff Writer

Numerous complaints to the courts by prisoners in the County-City Jail about the dental care furnished prisoners has resulted in a check of the procedures used and referral of at least one case to the county attorney's office.

According to one letter sent to Lancaster County Judge Ralph Slocum, several prisoners and the jailors are unhappy about the dental treatment afforded individuals while incarcerated at the jail.

"There have been men suffering in here for over three weeks," the letter stated and noted that it takes at least a week to set up an appointment for a person suffering from a toothache and then they pull the tooth and don't bother to scrape the extraction but send you back to jail.

"If you need more than one tooth pulled then you must set up another appointment."

Engineers Will Proceed On Thurston Co. Project

Despite objections from the Winnebago Indian Tribe and First District Rep. Charles Thone of Lincoln, Army engineers plan to go ahead with a Missouri River recreation project in Thurston County.

At issue is the proposed Snyder-Winnebago Oxbow Lake project 15 miles south of South Sioux City.

The Indians and Thone want work on the 3,100-acre project delayed until a land dispute between the Winnebagos and the State of Iowa is settled.

Col. Alfred L. Griebing of the Army Corps of Engineers explained the Army's position in a letter to Thone.

"The conflicting claim between the Winnebago Tribe and the State of Iowa cannot be resolved by the Corps of Engineers," Griebing said.

"They must be resolved by the courts, and this is irrespective of whether or not this project goes forward."

"We have a project approved and funded by Congress. A local sponsor, the State of Iowa, has agreed to match federal funds and is willing and ready to proceed."

Iowa, which claims to own about 56% of the land, planned

Another letter stated that one inmate has been refused treatment and that his tooth is "becoming worse" and that it may have to be extracted if he is not given immediate care.

Lancaster District Judge Herbert Ronin, to whom that letter was referred, has turned the matter over to the county attorney's office with instruction to have the complaining individual's teeth examined to see what needs to be done.

In response to the criticism by the prisoners, Police Chief Joseph Carroll asked that a report be made of the procedure used in obtaining dental care for prisoners.

According to a letter written by Capt. Robert F. Butcher, in charge of the services division of the police department, due to the unusual number of requests from prisoners for dental attention, all prisoners were examined by the County Dental Clinic on Nov. 16 and 17.

"There have been men suffering in here for over three weeks," the letter stated and noted that it takes at least a week to set up an appointment for a person suffering from a toothache and then they pull the tooth and don't bother to scrape the extraction but send you back to jail.

"If you need more than one tooth pulled then you must set up another appointment."

As a result of the examinations, Capt. Butcher said, appointments were made for seven prisoners including appointments for two extractions and one for teeth cleaning. According to the examination, nothing was necessary for two of the prisoners while one needed dental surgery and reportedly will see his own dentist and arrangements will be made.

Capt. Butcher said in the Dec. 8 letter that since Nov. 16 and 17 when the examinations were made, there were only two requests for dental appointments.

In an outline of the procedure used, M. Mewes, registered nurse assigned to the jail, gave the following information:

"When a male prisoner has a dental problem, he is to inform a jailor who then notifies one of the nurses and then the county dental clinic is contacted for an appointment. A prisoner may also see his own dentist if he agrees to pay expenses and the jail officials make the appointment for him."

If the prisoner has a medical problem or injury, the nurse cares for him at the jail and he is then taken to the hospital emergency room for evaluation. The prisoner may also see a physician of his choice if he agrees to assume the expense involved and the jail officials make the appointment for him.

Transportation is provided to county prisoners by the Lancaster County Sheriff's office and city prisoners by a police officer in a cruiser. An ambulance is utilized if the occasion demands.

Female prisoners are cared for in the same way except their initial complaint is received directly by one of the nurses.

Omaha Eyed As Center For Information

Omaha (AP) — Douglas County Red Cross Communications Director Hugh Tinley said Monday Omaha may be chosen as the central U.S. communications center for information on the Nicaragua earthquake.

Tinley said radio communications between Omaha and Managua are outstanding.

Tinley said officials "know their main priorities, their main needs are blood plasma which is being sent from Spain, and tents which they need for accommodations and places for people."

He said the U.S. military based in Panama and other South American governments are supplying the tents.

He said persons in Nebraska wanting to help have been asked to wait until the Red Cross determines more specifically what is needed.

He said there was some thought about shipping clothes and food but because of the high cost of air freight, Red Cross officials are asking persons to wait.

"For a town of only 3,600 people," he said, "this is really something to be proud of.

There aren't many small-town facilities as new, well-equipped and well-staffed as this one."

The expansion of facilities and equipment, Wattier said, will allow more patients to remain in their home town hospital, rather than being transferred to Lincoln or Omaha at considerable expenditure. "It makes it easier for family and friends to see them and speed them on to recovery," he added.

All the non-medical functions will enjoy increased elbow room and more efficient grouping in a wing of their own, Wattier said. The X-ray function is now in one large room instead of two small ones, for example. The purchasing department is located in one central storeroom; administrative offices are grouped together near the main entrance instead of scattered all over the hospital.

"That returns things to the patient area that should be there, and removes administrative functions from just outside the patient's door," Wattier said.

Two new emergency rooms have been built to replace the single old one, and improve its position in relation to the ambulance entrance. The addition emergency room will help handle an unexpectedly high occurrence of emergency runs.

Rapid progress in standards of hospital design and operation, the advent of Medicare, and an unusually high occupancy rate all provided impetus for change, Wattier said.

Responding to the need, the community and surrounding area — the hospital serves all of Custer and parts of Dodge and Butler Counties — provided the lion's share of funds in bequests and contributions. The rest was borrowed, Wattier said.

Pharmacy, lab, dietary and cafeteria areas are all larger than before.

The accounting department is enlarged and rearranged for departmentalization of records for Medicare, Wattier said.

"It's really a pretty good thing," he observed, "because it gives you a better chance to evaluate your patient care."

A three-bed ward in a wing of the building added in 1964 has been remodeled for use as an intensive or coronary care unit if and when its equipment and operation can be funded. Other rooms in a new 12-bed patient-care wing can be converted at will for use as isolation or pediatric units.

The opening of the new addition will likely be accompaniment by a staff increase of four to six people, Wattier said, most of them in the patient care area.

HOSPITAL ADDITION . . . administrator Lynn Wattier anticipates.

Schuyler Memorial Hospital Plans Expansion To Keep Up With Times

By SAM THORSON
Outstate Nebraska Bureau

Schuyler — Times are changing for small-town hospitals, and an $800,000 addition to Schuyler's 19-year-old Memorial Hospital will help keep it well abreast of progress.

The 19,800-square-foot addition is structurally complete and should be equipped and ready for use next January or February, said hospital administrator Lynn Wattier, who replaced Conrad Anderson Nov. 1.

The more-than-doubling of the hospital's floor space will not only add 12 beds to its present 40-bed capacity, Wattier said, but will free space for much-needed expansion of all non-medical functions. It will also provide several things the facility never had before: a recovery room, a meditation room, isolation and pediatric rooms and — potentially, at least — a close-supervision ward.

Rapid progress in standards of hospital design and operation, the advent of Medicare, and an unusually high occupancy rate all provided impetus for change, Wattier said.

Responding to the need, the community and surrounding area — the hospital serves all of Custer and parts of Dodge and Butler Counties — provided the lion's share of funds in bequests and contributions. The rest was borrowed, Wattier said.

Washington (AP) — Cattle prices have risen dramatically since mid-November and their effects on supermarket meat counters are going to be felt by housewives.

Choice-grade steers at Omaha, a market pacesetter, declined briefly last month to less than what they brought farmers a year earlier, around $32 per 100 pounds on the hoof.

But, according to the Agriculture Department, the slump was momentary. By last weekend the same type cattle brought $39 per hundredweight on the Omaha market, just under the record high of $40.25 set last July 6.

U.S. Near Top In Proportion Of Income Taxes To Total Take

The New York Times

Washington — Total government tax collections in the United States are a smaller proportion of the gross national product than in any other industrial country except Japan and Switzerland, new international comparisons have revealed.

However, the United States ranks near the top in the proportion of income taxes in total tax collections. Other countries rely more heavily on sales and "value-added" taxes, which are similar to sales taxes.

The new figures have been published in Paris by the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development, a 23-nation grouping of mainly industrial countries. They cover tax collections at all levels of government, including Social Security levies.

The latest figures, which the OECD termed "more detailed than any hitherto available on an international basis," are based on average tax collections in the years 1968, 1969 and 1970.

27.9% Of U.S. GNP

They show that taxes collected in the United States amounted to 27% of the gross national product — the country's total output of goods and services.

The highest tax "burden" was in Sweden, with 43%. Japan was lowest among the industrial countries with 19.4%, largely because Japan has a far smaller military establishment than the other countries.

Sweden was the only country with a tax rate of above 40% of the GNP. Switzerland's rate was 21.5%, while the other European industrial countries ranged from 30.1% in Italy to 39.7% in the Netherlands.

48.1% In Income Tax

The share of income taxes in total tax collections in the United States is 48.1%—34.4% collected from individuals and 13.7% from corporations. Only Sweden has a higher proportion of income taxes in total tax collections.

By contrast, the United States ranks at the bottom in the proportion of the total labeled "taxes on goods and services" — sales taxes, excise taxes, value-added taxes and the like. Only 19% of total U.S. taxes was in this form, with the top figure being Finland's 42.9%.

The marked differences among nations in how they collect their taxes can be shown by a comparison between the United States and France.

In France 40% of total taxes are in the form of Social Security taxes and only 16% in income taxes — putting France at the top in Social Security and at the bottom in income taxes.

In the United States 48.1% of the total is in income taxes and only 18.6% in Social Security taxes, though the Social Security percentage has risen in the United States since the 1968-70 period used in the figures.

Fire Kills Girl In New York

New York (AP) — A Christmas morning fire killed a 4-year-old girl and destroyed five frame houses in the South Jamaica section of Queens.

The girl, April Haywood, was trapped in her top-floor apartment in one of the two-story buildings. The three-alarm blaze spread through four adjoining frame houses before it was declared under control.

Nine families, some 50 persons, were left homeless. The Red Cross relocated them in a hotel. Fire marshals were investigating to determine the cause of the blaze.

them feel their problem is not just local, but has national significance.

Female Sailor Wouldn't Stay

Seattle (UPI) — Life aboard the only co-ed ship in the Navy is "OK," but not so great as to convince one seafarman to re-enlist.

Rebecca Johnson, 18, said life aboard the USS Sanctuary as one of the only 40 women among a crew of 500 doesn't make up for having to live by strict Navy regulations.

"Things may change, but at this time I don't feel I'd be suited for Navy life," Miss Johnson said while visiting her home over Christmas.

She joined the Navy immediately out of high school last spring and went to a co-ed boot camp at Orlando, Fla.

"A big part of the problem is that we don't hear about these things until it is too late," he said. "Often the public doesn't hear about them until the buildings are torn down."

Biddle said developers take great pains to keep their plans secret to avoid public attention.

Difficult and expensive as it is to preserve and maintain homes and country estates, preservation of historic buildings in the central city is even tougher, he said.

He cited as an example the recently razed Chicago Stock Exchange, a 13-story building designed by famed architect Louis Sullivan. What spelled the destruction of the Chicago Stock Exchange, he said, was that it was only 13 stories in a zone where 40 are permitted.

Biddle said he sees the main

Welfare Total Undercounted In New York City—Officials

New York (P) — City officials and Rand Corp. researchers claimed Monday that the U.S. Census undercounted the number of welfare cases in New York City by 39%, which could cost the city some federal revenue-sharing money. A Rand official said the error probably was duplicated in other cities.

A report by the New York City-Rand Institute also said the Census undercounted total welfare payments for the year by 41.1%. The institute is a nonprofit organization founded in 1968 to study city problems. It was established jointly by New York City and the Rand Corp., a private think tank that once did much of its work for the Department of Defense.

"It's very likely that this error has happened in other cities," said Edward Blum, vice president of the institute.

"There's a good chance that census data are significantly underestimating the number of poor families and poor individuals in the big cities of the country, and as a result they would be short-changed in federal aid."

New York City now gets just over $200 million a year in federal revenue sharing, based in part on census data about its over-all population and its population of poor people.

What do doctors recommend for patients in pain?

Doctors all over the country dispense over 50,000,000 of these tablets to their patients each year.

There are many medications a physician or dentist can prescribe for pain. Some are narcotic, many are available only on prescription. But there is one pain reliever, available without prescription, doctors prescribe again and again... Anacin.

Each year, doctors give over 50,000,000 Anacin tablets to their patients in pain. If doctors think enough about Anacin to dispense all these tablets, what better recommendation can you ask when you are in pain?

You see, Anacin contains more of the pain reliever doctors recommend than any other leading tablet.

Headache and dental pain is relieved incredibly fast, minor pains of arthritis are dependably eased for hours; even the aches and pains of colds and flu respond to Anacin. So the tension and depression that can be caused by such pain will be relieved too. And millions take Anacin without stomach upset.

When you're in pain, why don't you follow the practice of so many doctors and take the tablet a doctor might give you in his own office? Take Anacin!

Trio Charged In Shotgun Deaths Of Pair In Drug Dispute

El Paso, Tex. (UPI) — Two men were shot to death in a dispute over drugs and their bodies hidden in a shallow desert grave by members of a motorcycle gang, police said Monday.

Thirty local, state and federal officers raided two residences Sunday night and arrested 12 persons. Three were charged with murder, three with complicity and six were held on drug charges.

"It was part of a drug operation, and involved a motorcycle gang called the Banditos," said Sgt. Fred Timmons of the El Paso police department.

Chakravarti Rajagopalachari

India's Beloved Rajaji, 94, Dies

The New York Times

New Delhi — Chakravarti Rajagopalachari, former governor general of India, died in Madras Monday after a week's illness. He was 94 years old.

A close associate of the late Mahatma Gandhi and Jawaharlal Nehru, Rajaji—as he was affectionately called by Indians—took part in India's struggle for independence from England, was a talented administrator and later a severe critic of government policies.

He was a great admirer of the United States and corresponded with President Kennedy, whom he visited in Washington.

Rajaji said ideally the Census should conduct a recount of several census tracts and compare the count with actual city welfare records to determine the reasons for the discrepancy.

War Hero Dies In Crash

Houston (P) — Macario Garcia who received the Medal of Honor for his actions in World War II, has died in an auto accident. He was 52.

Garcia died Sunday night in a two-car collision southwest of here. The driver of the other car, Myrtle Koone, 48, of Houston, also was killed. Two other persons were injured.

Police said Garcia's car was traveling east in the westbound lane of U.S. Highway 59. He was on his way to his home in Alief, Tex.

Garcia quit his job in a cotton field near Lubbock, Tex., in 1942 and became a U.S. soldier although he was a Mexican national at the time. He later became a U.S. citizen.

He always said he was just an average soldier and was always scared.

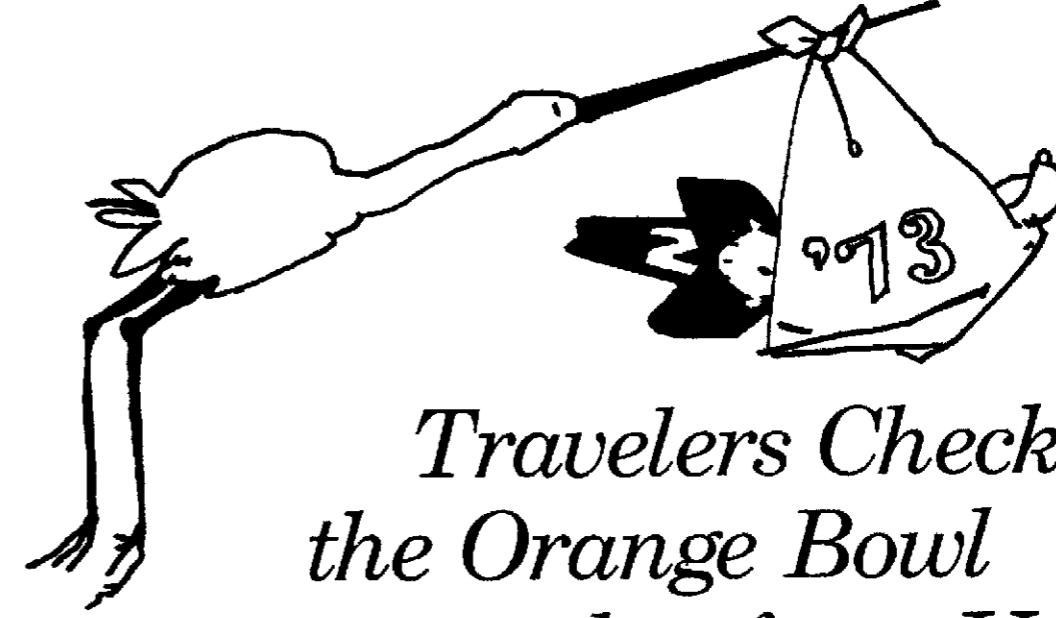

He said he was scared when his outfit landed in June 1944 at Normandy where he was wounded, and was still scared Nov. 17, 1944, when he volunteered to get two German machine guns that had stopped his platoon on the road to Cologne.

Even after being hit twice, in the shoulder and foot, Garcia pressed on. He knocked out both machine guns, killed six Germans and captured four.

Garcia, who left the army with the rank of master sergeant, also was awarded the Bronze Star and Purple Heart. He received the medal

'Twas A Happy Holiday In Suburbia

Christmas Day, 1972, already is a thing of the past. All that remains of that most joyous of holidays are the fond memories of family gatherings, and the thoughts of the excitement in children's eyes as they awakened on Christmas morning to discover that Santa Claus had, indeed, taken time to stop at their homes.

Of course, there also are the multitudes of gifts to be put away. And the children still are fascinated with their new toys; Dad is anxious to begin a new project with his new saw; and Mom is testing her new appliances, trying on her new clothes, and finding the perfect homes for her new trinkets.

It comes as no surprise that, following such a busy holiday, we want to sit down, relax, and just reflect on all of the precious moments of the past 24 hours—and see how our neighbors chose to observe Christmas Day.

For many of the residents of the suburban neighborhoods, Christmas was a day to visit family and friends; while others chose to welcome relatives and loved ones into their homes.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold D. Warner of Southwood and their children, Vincent and Angela, were hosts and hostesses on Christmas Day—and the guests for the holiday festivities were Mrs. Warner's parents, as well as her sister.

On Saturday, Dec. 23, Mrs. Warner's sister, Miss Gaila Friesen, arrived in Lincoln from her new home in Jacksonville, Fla.—and she will be a guest in the home of the suburban residents until after the first of the year.

Making the family gathering complete, Mrs. Warner's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Orlando Friesen, arrived early on Christmas morning, journeying from their home in Hillsborough, Kan. They plan to make their return trip on Wednesday, Dec. 27.

Several residents of Park Manor, however, report that they embarked on short journeys for the holiday.

Mr. and Mrs. Geoffrey Mumby, and their daughters, Brenda and Lynn, were the holiday guests of Mr. Mumby's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Spring, who reside in Benet. The guest list for the family dinner and celebration also included Mr. Mumby's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Mumby of Lincoln.

Spending the holidays with their son-in-law and daughter, as well as their grandchildren, were Mr. and Mrs. Myrlon Moon, who were the Christmas guests of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Vonderfiecht, and their sons, Scott and Steve, of Pawnee City.

Christmas has passed, but the memories still are fresh in the minds of those who spent the holiday out-of-town or stayed home entertaining guests in their homes.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Rockenbach and their son, Dean, have had one Christmas feast; and they now are looking forward to a second slightly belated one which will take place today.

Mrs. Rockenbach's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Hansel, entertained the couple and Dean on Christmas Day. Of course, gifts were exchanged among the guests, and others attending were Mrs. Rockenbach's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. LaVerne Hansel and their daughter, Kimberly, of Columbus, and another brother, Duane Hansel.

This noon the three Rockenbachs will be guests at the home of Mr. Rockenbach's parents, Mr. and Mrs. LaVerne Rockenbach. Among the guests to be present for the dinner and gift exchange will be Mr. Rockenbach's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. David Rockenbach and their son, Mark; his grandmother, Mrs. William Rockenbach and an uncle, Marlin Rockenbach.

Celebration Is Held

Mrs. Lizzie Olson Johnson was the honoree at a birthday celebration on Friday, Dec. 22, in observance of the 92nd anniversary of her birth.

The honoree was born in a sod house near Campbell on Dec. 22, 1880.

Mrs. Johnson has one daughter, Miss A. Wilhelmina Johnson.

luck is not entirely eliminated because other factors sometimes enter the picture.

Thus, the succession of opponents you meet may, or may not, play well against you—and this can have an important bearing on how you fare. Also, you may get to fine contracts that go down because of horrendous distribution, or get to poor contracts and make them because of exceptionally favorable distribution.

Consider this deal played in the Blue Ribbon pair championship. My partner (Mrs. Dorothy Hayden) and I got to game on the bidding shown.

Her three notrump bid with the singleton king of clubs was certainly imaginative, and was moreover amply rewarded when she made the contract

after West led a low club.

Mrs. Hayden won the queen with the king and ran six diamonds, placing West under severe stress.

He followed twice and discarded a heart and a spade, but then, in order to protect his king of spades, discarded two clubs.

Now Mrs. Hayden played a heart. West took the ace and cashed three clubs, but that was the end of the line. He had to yield the last two tricks and Mrs. Hayden thus made three notrump.

You could call the hand a brilliant success, if you were so minded—but, all the same, there was a lot of luck attached to it.

Thus, at a different table, against similar bidding, West made the inspired lead of the ace of clubs against three notrump, East-West scoring the first seven tricks to put the contract down three.

Fortunately for Mrs. Hayden and me, we were sitting at the right table.

Christmas Brings Peace To Conflicts

By The Associated Press

Christmas Day this year brought a brief respite from armed conflict in several areas, and world leaders emphasized the need to strive for peace.

Pope Paul VI speaking at the Vatican, wished the world and a crowd of 15,000 "a blessed Christmas" and said, "Our glance is turned especially to those places where there is still war, hunger, suffering and distress."

In 16 languages, including Vietnamese, he wished people "a blessed Christmas in the joy and peace of Christ." Thousands in the crowd exploded in a long applause after the statement in Vietnamese, and a few chanted for several seconds, "Peace, Peace."

President Nixon and his wife exchanged gifts Christmas morning at their home in Key Biscayne, Fla. Aides would not say what the gifts were. The Nixons talked by telephone with their two daughters, Julie and Tricia, and the girls' husbands, David Eisenhower and Edward Cox. The two couples are vacationing in Greece.

In Vietnam, the 24-hour Christmas bombing halt was extended for an indefinite period while Nixon reportedly seeks to resume the deadlock secret peace negotiations.

Operations Resume

The Saigon command reported that South Vietnamese forces resumed combat operations at dusk Monday.

Stefan Cardinal Wyszyński of Poland, addressing a packed St. John's Cathedral in Warsaw, condemned U.S. policy in Vietnam and called on America's Roman Catholic bishops to make "utmost efforts to stop the bloodshed of innocent children and people" there.

Peace Demonstrators Chant Against Bombs

Washington (UPI) — Chanting "stop the bombing, Lord," close to 200 people took Christmas Communion in an interfaith service for peace Monday across the street from the White House.

Resembling a smaller, more somber version of crowds that have thronged to Washington for other antiwar demonstrations in previous years, the group was part of a day of holiday protests against President Nixon's resumed bombing of North Vietnam.

The largely white group, which included people of all ages, was hidden from the White House during the service by the partially completed reviewing stand and bleachers being built along the inaugural parade route.

White House guards refused to accept an open letter or protest to President Nixon remanding him of his "pledge."

Services Set For Wife Of Senator

Washington (UPI) — A memorial service for Evelyn Wadsworth Symington, wife of U.S. Sen. Stuart Symington and mother of Rep. James W. Symington, both of Missouri, will be held Thursday afternoon at the Washington Cathedral.

The Rev. Francis B. Sayre Jr., dean of the Episcopal cathedral and a grandson of President Woodrow Wilson, will conduct the 2 p.m. EST service, Symington family spokesman Stanley Fike said Monday.

Mrs. Symington, 69, who married Symington 48 years ago, died Sunday of an apparent heart attack less than an hour after suffering severe chest pains while at her home in Washington's Georgetown section.

The Symingtons had just returned from the Washington Redskins-Green Bay Packers National Football Conference playoff game here. Mrs. Symington returned recently from a European trip and had not been ill health.

Fike said the family is requesting friends send contributions to the cathedral in lieu of flowers.

13% For Education

Rio de Janeiro — Almost 13% of Brazil's budget goes for education — more than double the proportion of 10 years ago. In 1960 about a million students were attending secondary school; at present there are more than 3.5 million.

In London, Queen Elizabeth II asked in her Christmas Day message that her subjects join in praying that the troubled province of Northern Ireland "may be touched with spirit and the message of brotherhood, peace and good will..."

The final day of the three-day holiday truce in Ireland was marred by a few shooting incidents.

Temporary Peace

Christmas brought temporary peace to the Mideast this year. No fighting was reported by either the Israeli or Arab sides.

The day was marked by official moves toward increased religious toleration among the Moslem and Christian populations. In Syria, the State Council lifted an order sequestering Christian missionary schools seized by the government in November 1967. In Egypt, the government observed Christmas as an official holiday for the first time in centuries.

Sheikh Mohamed El-Fahham, at Cairo's Al-Ashar Mosque, issued a statement asserting the "common roots" of Christianity and Islam remind others that Christ's mission was to achieve peace on earth.

In Byblos, a small Lebanese town from whose name some historians say the word Bible was derived, monks and nuns participated with people in night-long celebrations at a hilltop monastery and in the streets. Church bells chimed and crowds sang Christmas carols.

In Bethlehem, a throng of 15,000 tourists thinned out, and hundreds of Christian Arabs converged on St. Catherine's Church for the morning High Mass. The Arabs had been kept out of the 1,400-capacity Church of the Nativity on Christmas Eve night to make way for tourist pilgrims.

Fleet Biggest Waste

Miami, Fla. — Short shots while thinking that the biggest waste Nebraskans are asked to cough up money for is the Orange Bowl Parade float.

Nebraskans are asked for $10,000 to have a float built that's worth about $3,000 and that alongside other floats in the parade fits in like a stray hound at the Westminster Kennel Club show.

Two Nebraskans going to Miami this week as associates, whose association likely will be severed briefly are Ak-Sar-Ben's Tom Brock and Dick Becker.

Brock is a former Notre Dame gridiron while Becker, who covered the Huskers for years as sports editor of the Lincoln Journal and attended the University of Nebraska, will be in Miami to attend the annual meeting of the National Association of State Racing Commissioners beginning Jan. 2.

They'll be staying at the Americana Hotel, within walking distance of Notre Dame's headquarters at the Balmoral and the Huskers' quarters at the Ivanhoe.

After Grambling coach Eddie Robinson, due to be the featured speaker at Nebraska's football banquet Jan. 19, had to do more than 200 takes for one of the TV commercials on Grambling's TV network, the Sarra Films Company of Chicago presented the Grambling coach with an award as Louisiana's worst TV actor.

Top Bowler 40th On Golf List

Don Johnson was the leading money winner on the Professional Bowlers Association tour this year with earnings of $56,648.

That money figure would put him only 40th on the pro golf tour money list with Jack Nicklaus, the leading money winner on the PGA Tour earning $320,542, more than six times as much as Johnson.

Ninety-three pro golfers earned more money than the No. 20 man on the bowling tour.

Five former Big Eight golfers earned more than $37,000 and two topped the $100,000 mark. That list is headed by Oklahoma State's Grier Jones, fourth with $140,177.

Others are former Colorado footballer Hale Irwin, 13th with $111,539; Jim Colbert of Kansas State, 23rd with $85,302; Labron Harris Jr. of Oklahoma State, 36th with $64,909; and Dave Eichelberger of Oklahoma State, 67th with $37,543.

AP Changes Selection Method

The Associated Press which with its mass-type voting somehow managed to pick Iowa State's George Amundson as the Big Eight Offensive Player of the Year even though Nebraska's Johnny Rodgers was winning the Heisman Trophy is changing its style for picking all-Big Eight teams in football and basketball, going to a committee system.

One golf club manufacturer has come out with a new line of graphite shafted clubs designed to give you 10 per cent more distance and greater accuracy. The price $1,120 per set. Or if you want to buy them one at a time, it's $100 per wood and $80 per iron.

The niftiest Christmas card we've seen this holiday season -- it's more like a book -- is one sent out by Mr. and Mrs. Al McPherson, NU Class of '49, which contains a detailed account of each Husker football game.

Bing Crosby's Pro-Am golf tournament had the largest TV audience in 1972, reaching 7,140,000 homes. Runner-up was the Masters with 6,770,000 homes.

The 77 points scored by Nebraska against Army in the third week of the season stood up as the most points scored during the past football campaign.

From the There's That Phone Company Again Department — When Rodney Harris graduated from DeLand, Fla., High School, he wanted to go to a Big 10 school, but had no offers. So his stepfather put in a call to the University of Illinois — he thought. But instead the phone company had hooked him up with Indiana assistant Howard Brown. Harris was the quarterback for Indiana this season.

Adams, Strock Ready For Blue-Gray Contest

Montgomery, Ala. (AP) — The presence of the nation's No. 1 and No. 2 individual total offense leaders foreshadows a wide-open, perhaps a high-scoring game. But Wednesday night's Blue-Gray football meeting may turn out instead to be one where defense counts the most.

The starting quarterbacks — Tony Adams of Utah State for the North and Don Strock of Virginia Tech for the Rebels — have demonstrated that both can score on almost any given play, particularly if it's a pass. Adams, who led all other college backs in combined passing and rushing yardage this year, threw 22 touchdown passes during the season. Strock hit his receivers on 16 scoring plays.

They will be throwing part of the time in the televised game to receivers they have worked with all season. One of Adams' targets is his teammate at Utah State, Tom Forzani, who led the nation with 85 receptions. Another is

Oddsmakers Pick Miami, Redskins

Lake Tahoe, Nev. (UPI) — Harrah's Taboo Racebook made the Miami Dolphins and Washington Redskins favorites Monday to win their respective National Football League conference championships.

The Dolphins were installed as 2½-point favorites over Pittsburgh Steelers for the American Conference title.

The Redskins were listed as ½-point favorites to defeat the Dallas Cowboys in the National Conference.

NFL Officials, Police Set To Discuss Security

© The New York Times

By DAVE ANDERSON

New York — National Football League officials will consult Tuesday with Pittsburgh police regarding stricter security for the players before and during the American Conference Championship game there next Sunday between the Steelers and the Miami Dolphins.

"We don't want anymore incidents or confusion," Val Pinchbeck Jr., the A.F.C. executive assistant said.

Pinchbeck was alluding to the beating by police of Bob Moore, a tight end for the Oakland Raiders, last Friday night and to the mob scene in Saturday's game when spectators swarmed on the field at three rivers stadium as the Steelers won, 13-7.

The Dolphins will arrive in Pittsburgh on Friday, and they will be lodged at the William Penn hotel in the downtown area.

"I don't expect any disturbances. From the Pittsburgh fans," Don Shula, the Dolphin coach, said "I don't know exactly what provoked what happened last week, but I'd be disappointed if anything happened to make things uncomfortable for our team this week. If the Steelers were playing in Miami, I certainly would want our fans to be courteous to them."

Moore needed six stitches to close a wound on top of his head in a beating by five Pittsburgh police as he attempted to enter the Pittsburgh Hilton hotel where the Raiders were staying.

Moore was struggling to get through a mob of Steeler fans who had congregated outside the hotel after a downtown rally unsanctioned by the Steeler management. The fans had been annoyed by the appearance of John Madden, the Raider coach, who was standing defiantly behind a lobby window.

"The big thing," Pinchbeck said, "is that the fans in Pittsburgh just aren't used to being in the playoffs. They got a little carried away by it."

Meanwhile, most of the Dolphin players appeared more concerned with what the weather will be for the game that will determine the AFC team in the Super Bowl game. Accustomed as they are to Miami's warm climate, freezing temperatures might threaten their 15-game winning streak.

Shula plans two workouts in Pittsburgh, on Friday and on Saturday, presumably to accustom his players to the cold.

Another element in the match-up is that Chuck Noll, the Steeler coach, was the defensive backfield coach under Shula for three seasons on the Baltimore Colts staff. Noll took command of the Steelers in 1969 while Shula moved on the Dolphins the following season.

"I never questioned that Chuck Noll would be successful," Shula said. "It was just a matter of time before he put the Steelers where they are."

Shula announced that Earl Morrall, the 38-year-old quarterback, would start against the Steelers and that Doug Crusan, the left tackle on the offensive unit, is "just about ready" after an ankle injury. Crusan did not play in the Dolphins' 20-14 victory over the Cleveland Browns on Sunday.

Bob Griese, the all-N.F.L. quarterback last season, also is available.

"Griese is getting more and more time to improve his ankle," Shula said.

Three rivers stadium has Tartan Turf somewhat similar to the Poly-Turf in the Orange Bowl where the Dolphins play. Both teams have played the majority of their games on artificial turf this year—the Steelers 12 of 15, the Dolphins 10 of 15.

"From what we know," Shula said. "There are no major problems with the artificial turf in Pittsburgh."

Warfield Prepared For Browns

MIAMI (UPI) — Some of the Miami Dolphins may have taken the Cleveland Browns a little lightly, but not Paul Warfield. He knew better.

Lucky thing for the Dolphins he did. It enabled them to run off their 15th straight victory, stay on the track to the Super Bowl and bring them right up to next Sunday's AFC finale with Pittsburgh by coming from behind in the last quarter to beat the battling Browns, 20-14.

Warfield was traded to Miami by Cleveland in 1970 for a first round draft choice, which turned out to be Mike Phipps, an all-league wide receiver at the time of the trade. Warfield continued living in Cleveland.

When the Browns beat the Dolphins 28-0 after he joined Miami, life around his home became a little difficult for Paul — "People just let me know they didn't think the Dolphins were capable of handling a club like the Browns."

A week ago, Warfield said he wasn't letting any emotionalism get in the way of his preparations for the game with Cleveland.

"I lied when I said that," Paul admitted after Sunday's victory.

"Before the game, I didn't want to talk about how much it meant to me but it was special."

"Every night this week," said the slender receiver, "I slept a couple of hours less than I usually do. And the sleep I had wasn't very restful. I couldn't get the Browns off my mind for five minutes all week."

The lost sleep didn't seem to bother him when the time of reckoning came — eight minutes to go and the Dolphins behind 14-13.

Warfield accounted for 60 of the 80 yards that brought the Dolphins into the end zone for the winning touchdown, on two receptions and an interference penalty against him that moved the ball to the 8-yard line. Jim Kiick scored from there and the defense sealed it in the final minute with a fifth interception of a Phipps pass.

Miami, with the best rushing record in NFL history, was flat for the game with the Browns. Could it be the Dolphins had bought some of Cleveland's poor mousing?

Cleveland owner Art Modell, for instance, had said before the game "I hope we can get through the national anthem."

Warfield wasn't fooled by that.

"They came in trying to lull us to sleep, saying they were just happy to be here, and all that," said Warfield. "Well, when I was with the Browns and we played Baltimore for the world championship, we were in the same position as the Browns were this time."

Oakland Coach Disputes Ruling

... IT'S DISAPPOINTING'

Oakland (UPI) — John Madden, still seething two days after his Oakland Raiders were knocked out of the national football league playoffs by the most controversial play in years, said Monday he was positive his team "was had."

After spending part of Christmas eve viewing films of the final seconds of the Oakland-Pittsburgh game during which time Franco Harris of the Steelers scooped up a deflected pass and scored the game-winning touchdown, the Raider coach said he was positive defensive back Jack Tatum did not touch the ball.

If Tatum had not touched the ball, the pass should have been ruled incomplete with the Raiders holding a 7-6 edge with just five seconds left on the clock.

Instead, referee Fred Swearingen, after consultation with NFL officials in the pressbox, ruled Tatum had indeed deflected the ball into the hands of Harris and that the touchdown stood for the Steelers' 13-7 victory Saturday.

"What Jack did was give him (Frenchy Fuqua, the intended receiver) a good shot from behind as the ball hit him on the shoulder pad," Madden explained. "And then after the ball went to Harris, they clipped Phil Villapiano (Raider linebacker)."

"But there was no way they were going to call it the other way with all those people out on the field. They couldn't have any other decision with all those wild people on the field. Something would have happened. Those people might have killed them the officials."

Madden also insisted that NFL officials in the pressbox established precedent by making the touchdown decision from the television instant replay.

"The officials told me they didn't know what happened," Madden said. "And they were going to check upstairs to see what it was. The referee went in to use the dugout telephone and when he came out he called it a touchdown."

UCLA garnered all the first place votes on the 30 ballots cast for 300 points to give it a huge margin over second-place Marquette (239).

North Carolina State with 193 points moved up from the fourth position to the third spot this week on the strength of a pair of victories over tough Davidson and Georgia.

Maryland, which beat George Washington, its only foe of the week, 88-79, dropped to fourth place with 181 points and was followed by Minnesota, Long Beach State, Missouri, Penn, Southwest Louisiana and Vanderbilt in the top ten.

The Blue-Gray squads gave up part of the Christmas celebration Monday to put in another of the daily workouts which began last Wednesday. The game gets underway at 7 p.m. CST.

Because of the scoring potential, it may be the defense rather than the offense which decides the winner. Either squad appears capable of scoring anytime the opposition makes a mistake.

Vince Gibson of Kansas State, who heads the Blue coaching staff and who coached in last year's Blue-Gray, says his defensive strength is greater this year.

The South's head coach, Charlie Coffey of Virginia Tech, says he is particularly fearful of the Yankee secondary. It looks, he says, "like King Kong's big brother."

But the defensive unit Coffey has assembled is no bunch of midgets. It includes All-America end Roger Gorce of Baylor, who recovered five fumbles during the past season and made 89 tackles plus 62 assists.

On running plays, the Blues will be counting on Pete Van Valkenburg of Brigham Young, Mike Deutsch of North Dakota and Marty Januszewicz of Syracuse.

With Strock in the South backfield will be Wade Hughes of Clemson, Bill Sadler of Texas Christian and Ken Garrett of Wake Forest.

Sabres' Crozier To Undergo Tests

Buffalo, N.Y. (UPI) — Goalie Roger Crozier of the Buffalo Sabres of the National Hockey League has been hospitalized in Toronto for what appears to be a flareup of pancreatitis, an illness that has affected the 30-year-old goaltender for several years, the Sabres said Monday night.

Foremost reason for that thought are the pairings. Should all the favorites win in the first rounds Wednesday and Thursday nights, Friday night's semifinals will match four teams with a combined record of 31-2. And one of these games would pit two unbeaten teams, Missouri and Oklahoma, against each other.

Crozier became ill on the plane and checked into Toronto's General Hospital.

Of course, all of that is supposed to happen in the first round.

Wednesday night's action seeds Iowa State (6-1) against Nebraska (3-4) and Colorado (3-3) against Missouri (8-0), which is ranked seventh nationally. Thursday night Oklahoma (6-0) and Kansas (4-

Allen's Christmas Gift: Preparing For Dallas

... 'HAPPIEST CHRISTMAS DAY'

George Allen
Eyes NFC Title

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Indefatigable, never-stop-going George Allen spent "the happiest Christmas Day" he can remember, doing the thing he loves best — preparing himself for the Washington Redskins next game.

That will be against the Dallas Cowboys at Robert F. Kennedy Memorial Stadium here this coming Sunday and out of the contest will come the team to represent the NFC in the Super Bowl against the A.F.C.'s Miami-Pittsburgh survivor.

Allen still was receiving phone congratulations Monday for the superbly executed 16-3 victory the Redskins fashioned over the Green Bay Packers Sunday.

These phone calls were somewhat different than those he received on Christmas Day four years ago.

"I'll never forget the first one that day," Allen says, able to laugh about it now. "It woke me up."

The call was from the late Dan Reeves, then owner of the Los Angeles Rams for whom Allen was coaching, and Reeves told Allen he was fired.

"We were only 10-3 that year, too," says Allen, who hasn't forgotten and probably never will.

That was the same year many of the Los Angeles

Detroit Falls To Knicks

NEW YORK (UPI) — Bill Bradley, Dave DeBusschere and Walt Frazier combined for 73 points, and the New York Knicks held off a brilliant Detroit Pistons' rally Monday night to win their 12th consecutive home game, 113-110.

With 6:44 remaining in the game, the Knicks led 103-80, but Dave Bing, who had the game high of 35 points, hit for eight of them during a 21-4 Detroit spurt that reduced the Pistons' deficit to 107-101 with 2:58 to play.

Rockie John Gianelli tapped in a missed shot and Earl Monroe hit two free throws to make it 111-101 with 2:04 remaining. The Pistons then put on a 9-2 break with Bob Lahier scoring six of these points. The Pistons scored three baskets in the last seven seconds for the final margin.

DeBusschere, who scored 24 points, hit for 16 in the first quarter and the Knicks' first eight points of the game. His second basket gave the Knicks a 4-2 lead which they never lost.

Their largest lead was 49-23 at 7:26 of the second quarter, and they led 65-43 at the intermission.

Bill Bradley was high scorer for the Knicks, and Walt Frazier hit for 20, while Lanier chipped in 27 for the Pistons.

Prince Of Truth Captures Victory

MIAMI (AP) — The Lucky Irish Stables' Prince of Truth won the $25,000-added Christmas Day Handicap at Calder Race Course Monday barely holding off the late charge of Rastaferian.

Rastaferian, in last place turning for home, closed extremely fast on the outside to miss by a nose. Glazed Donut was third, three lengths farther back.

Hold Your Peace, the even-money favorite with the crowd of 11,779, finished fourth, a head behind Glazed Donut.

Prince of Truth, ridden by Jacinto Vasquez, ran a 1 1-6 miles in 1:46 and paid $15.80, $10.80 and $6.80. Rastaferian paid $12.60 and $7.80 and Glazed Donut paid $7.60 to show.

Prince of Truth went to the lead at once and stayed there all the way, turning back repeated challenges. Prince of Truth opened a 1 1/2-length margin at the quarter pole and increased his lead to 2 1/2 lengths in mid-stretch as he put away everyone except Rastaferian. Glazed Donut made a big move into second place at the three sixteenths pole but hung in the drive. On the last 70 yards, Rastaferian was gaining with every stride, but simply ran out of ground.

Buckeye Scout Respects USC

... HAYES HAS REPORT

Pasadena, Calif. (UPI) — Esco Sarkkinen, then a nervous 22-year-old, jokes about it now — but his first scouting report was no laughing matter 30 years ago.

"The only diagrams I had after the first quarter of the West Point-Columbia game were my sweat drops," reminisces the happy Finn, the man behind Ohio State football scouting for 20 seasons.

Sarkkinen, his run-down on Rose Bowl opponent Southern California already in Couch

Woody Hayes' hands relaxed in the team's hotel headquarters during an off-day Christmas.

Sarkkinen, an all-America end in 1939 for Ohio State, continued to reflect on his first hectic assignment for the U.S. Coast Guard Academy.

"I was completely bamboozled," Sarkkinen said. "We were to play West Point the next week. They were using the T formation, and I was single wing oriented."

So what did Sarkkinen tell the Coast Guard coaching staff?

"I had to be honest and admit I blew the assignment," he answered. "The worst thing I could have done would have been to fake it."

The Army team's Doc Blanchard and Glen Davis

stomped the Coast Guard 72-0, but Sarkkinen says, "Even after 30 years and what I know now about scouting, I couldn't have changed the outcome much."

The native of Fairport Harbor, Ohio, has become such an accomplished college scout that Hayes maintains he's the best in the business.

"He sees everything. He even sees things we don't get from our film exchanges," the Buckeye coach said of Sarkkinen, who doubles as a defensive end coach.

"A scout has to watch a game entirely different from a fan," Sarkkinen said. "The ball is the worst enemy of a scout," he explained. "It draws you to one thing you don't want to follow."

A good scout can tell you what six men are doing on a single play. He must have peripheral vision," said Sarkkinen.

Although he saw Southern Cal only in a closing victory over Notre Dame, the Ohio State scout's respect for the Trojans is enormous.

"This has to be ranked with John McKay's finest," he said, "the way the team handled Notre Dame, Arkansas, Michigan State and UCLA, and was never pressed."

Sarkkinen also spied on the great 1968 Southern Cal team, led by O.J. Simpson, but contends, "A lot of Trojan starters in 1968 wouldn't be regulars this year."

VICTORY WISH... Woody Hayes gives Santa Claus his wish for a triumph over Southern California.

Rooney Misses Climactic Finish

... 'YOU WON'

Pittsburgh (UPI) — It was the most miraculous play in Pittsburgh Steeler history, and Art Rooney didn't see it.

The 71-year-old team owner left his private box in the waning seconds Saturday with Pittsburgh trailing Oakland 7-6 and facing a seemingly hopeless fourth down situation.

"I figured we had lost, and I wanted to get to the locker room early so I could personally thank the players for the fine job they'd done all season," said Rooney, who waited four decades for the Steelers' first division title.

"I was standing by the elevator when one of the stadium guards came running at me yelling, 'You won it.' You won it," he added. "I asked him if he was kidding and he screamed, 'No, no. Listen to the crowd!'"

The crowd was indeed in a state of joyous frenzy after watching a one-in-a-million touchdown play that gave Pittsburgh a 13-7 playoff win over the Raiders and sent the Steelers into the American Football Conference title game against Miami.

Faced with fourth-and-10 and the Steeler 40-yard line, quarterback Terry Bradshaw had drilled a pass about 30 yards downfield to Frenchy Fuqua.

Raider defensive back Jack Tatum knocked the ball away, from Fuqua and it shot 10 yards backward, where Franco Harris made a shoestring catch and raced 42 yards for a touchdown.

"I heard all the shouting and cheering, but I still wasn't sure what happened," said Rooney.

"I went down the locker room but the only guys there were Bobby DeMarco a trainer and Marty Homa club

Walk Sparks Phoenix Past Chicago, 115-108

PHOENIX (AP) — Center Neal Walk sparked the Phoenix Suns in the last five minutes to a 115-108 victory over the Chicago Bulls in a nationally televised National Basketball Association game.

Walk made one foul shot and a three-point play and grabbed a timely rebound to give Phoenix a 111-104 lead.

Chicago, paced by Bob Love, Chet Walker and Garfield Heard, led most of the game. Phoenix tied it briefly at 77-77 in the third period, then fell behind again before their closing surge.

Guard Dick Van Arsdale scored a season-high 32 points to pace Phoenix. Charlie Scott added 26 points and Walk finished with 20.

For the Bulls, forwards Bob Love and Chet Walker scored 29 and 20 points, respectively. It was Phoenix' first victory of the season over the Bulls, who had beaten Phoenix 10 of the previous 11 games between the two teams. Phoenix now has four straight victories. It was the second defeat in a row for the Bulls.

Guard Norm Van Lier had four timely field goals that brought the Bulls back even during the see-saw third quarter. Van Lier had only eight points in the entire game, but he had 15 assists.

The Bulls, paced by Walker and Love, led 27-20 at the end of the first quarter, 57-49 at the half and 83-77 at the end of the third quarter. But in the last five minutes, Phoenix took control of the boards and used its fast-break attack to put the game away.

Lisa Sloan of Lexington, Ky., defended the selection of Yale quarterback Tom Doyle because "he looked so cute out there and so neat."

One of the prime considerations in picking the girls' all-Americans was height. "We all like tall guys," said Hallie Head of Birmingham, Ala.

Other selections on the six-man squad were George Allen Jr., son of the Washington Redskins coach and Kent Merritt, both of the University of Virginia, and UCLA quarterback Tom Harmon, who was chosen for "his nice California tan."

Lisa Sloan of Lexington, Ky., defended the selection of Yale quarterback Tom Doyle because "he looked so cute out there and so neat."

One of the prime considerations in picking the girls' all-Americans was height. "We all like tall guys," said Hallie Head of Birmingham, Ala.

Other selections on the six-man squad were George Allen Jr., son of the Washington Redskins coach and Kent Merritt, both of the University of Virginia, and UCLA quarterback Tom Harmon, who was chosen for "his nice California tan."

Ashland Chamber Headed By Lady

By SAM THORSON

Outstate Nebraska Bureau

Ashland — Taking over the gavel from John L. Reid midway through the Ashland Chamber of Commerce's December meeting, Mrs. Art Way became the only woman chamber president in Nebraska and the first in this Saunders County town's history.

Concern for Ashland's economic vitality comes naturally for Mrs. Way and her husband, who operate Art's Floral on Ashland's main street. "We've got too much at stake to let the world pass us by," said Mrs. Way in an interview. "This town's been good to us—of course, we've worked hard at it, too."

Art Way also is active on the chamber, serving as retail committee chairman. Savoring her new power of appointment,

Western Tech Head Has Plan To Use Hospital

Sidney (P) — Merle Rudebusch, president of the Western Nebraska Technical College of Sidney, has a proposal for use of an old hospital complex on the school's campus.

However, Rudebusch hasn't been able to present it to officials of the State Department of Vocational Rehabilitation because of weather and travel problems.

Rudebusch was to meet with two department officials Dec. 13, but a snowstorm in the eastern portion of the state forced postponement of the trip.

Another session was set for Dec. 21. But because of a heavy seasonal load on the airlines, that meeting was also delayed.

Another session has been set for Jan. 10 — weather permitting.

The Rudebusch proposal is to convert the old hospital and dispensary, a complex of eight buildings, into some form of facility for use by the Department of Vocational Rehabilitation.

Rudebusch emphasized that his plan isn't solid yet.

A Sidney group has been actively seeking occupants for the buildings which aren't used by the college.

He said a vocational rehabilitation program would round out the services offered WNTC and could be beneficial to all parties involved.

BROEDER . . . enjoys working with youth.

Bachelor, 70, Longtime Alexandria 4-H Leader

By DEAN TERRILL

Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Alexandria — Everybody knows that every 4-H leader is some parent who got lassoed into service by two or three of his own teenagers.

Not Hugo Broeder. He's a 70-year-old bachelor who started in 4-H work back when Charlie Bryan was governor.

That was close to 50 years ago, although Broeder can claim "only" half that span as a leader.

"I just always got along with kids, that's the only way I can explain it," said the soft-spoken farmer. "And 4-H is about the most important organization for young people that I've had contact with."

Broeder helped charter the old Meadow Lawn Livestock Club when he was a young rancher near North Platte. He still has its original certificate, which includes Bryan's signature—but no date.

He has been a 4-H leader continuously since 1954, the last 16 years with Alexandria's Sandy Creek 4-H Club. Mostly a livestock group, it has varied in size from five to 15 members.

Broeder could scarcely be prouder of his young charges if they were his own offspring.

Besides scores of ribbons taken at county fairs and in other show rings, his members have claimed their share of district and state honors. A few years back, for instance, Bob Hines won the state tractor driving contest and "came within one point of being the national winner."

Then there were three Housers—Bob, Sally and Ron—who capped numerous Sandy Creek accomplishments with more in college. Bob is now a minister, Sally is about to graduate in home economics and Ron is studying medicine.

The latest state honors came when Dave Kerwood, one of the club's 10 current members, won a $500 award for public speaking.

"The club hasn't had a single dropout in six years now," bragged the oldster. Wiry and a hard worker, he keeps himself loose with frequent rides on his own horse.

Born in Thayer County Broeder was only six-months-old when his father took his family to a Lincoln County homestead. He returned to this area in 1941 to help a cousin who was called in to service.

He took a "temporary" job the next year and is still at it, three decades later, as a hired hand on the Daryl Easley farm. He also is a partner with a brother in the original family homestead.

For years ago Broeder was one of 13 Nebraskans attending a 4-H leaders conference in Washington, D.C. An equally fond memory was serving as county captain for the Pony Express Centennial reenactment of 1960.

Nixon's Landslide Not Most Lopsided

Washington (UPI) — Richard Nixon won the 1972 election with a record-breaking 47,186,390 votes, but his landslide fell short of the most one-sided presidential victory in U.S. history.

Official vote canvasses from the 50 states and the District of Columbia Monday showed Nixon's total to be nearly 4 million larger than the previous popular vote record for one candidate: 43,129,484 for Lyndon B. Johnson in 1964.

But Nixon did not break Johnson's landslide record of 61.1% of the total popular vote. With 77,511,238 votes cast for all candidates this year, Nixon's percentage was 60.9, just 0.1 higher than Franklin D. Roosevelt's 1936 landslide figure.

Sen. George S. McGovern got 29,169,585 votes, 18,186,390 less than Nixon. His percentage of the total popular vote was 37.7.

Rep. John Schmitz, the American Party candidate, ran third with 929,291 votes, 1.1% of the total. Seven other candidates, led by Dr. Benjamin Spock of the People's Party, got a total of 243,241 votes, or 0.3% of the total.

The total turnout was 54.8% of the Census Bureau's estimated 139,563,000 voting age population. That was the lowest turnout since 1948, when 51.3% of the voting age population went to the polls.

In carrying 48 states with 521 electoral votes, Nixon also came in second to a Democrat, FDR got 523 electoral votes in 1936, carrying 46 states.

Nixon's recorded electoral vote will be 520 because one of Virginia's electors last week cast his ballot for John Hospers of the Libertarian Party, who got 2,648 popular Louis Fisher, Socialist Labor — 48,746 in 10 states.

Gus Hall, Communist — 23,631 in 12 states.

E. Harold Munn, Prohibitionist — 9,256 in 3 states.

Evelyn Reed, Socialist Workers — 6,397 in three states.

All of the presidential figures are based on official vote canvasses.

The port town of Athens. A good place to stay if you're taking off for the islands. Harbor full of cruise ships. Freighters. Fishing boats. Greek millionaires' yachts.

Tidy, clean town. Geranium pots hang on every lamp post. Tourkolimano is a tiny harbor area, filled from end to end with outdoor restaurants. A Greek Fisherman's Wharf. Crowded in summer, today we are the only customers. Empty lighted sidewalk cafés. Deserted tables. Music playing to empty seats.

Owners and waiters plead with straggler tourists for business. Tourkolimano has always been my favorite in Athens. Never seemed expensive. But maybe I hadn't had lobster.

They weigh fish dinners and charge what the scale reads. Owner must have had this thumb on the lobster: $23 for two! Never on Sunday? Never again! (All over Europe, lobster is the most expensive thing you can buy.)

At this time of year you can hop on and off ships independently between islands. No fuss about hotel reservations. Delighted to have you.

No point going first class—it will be empty anyway. Classes are first, second and deck. From Piraeus to Mykonos, 5 hours: First $10. Second, $5. Deck, $2.50. On a blue Aegean day, go deck. You'll spend your time out there anyway.

Gas Halts Performance By Chinese

Chicago (UPI) — Tear gas, pouring out of a canister bomb, halted a performance by a troupe of acrobats from China for a half-hour.

There had been small demonstrations outside the Civic Opera House since the Shenyang troupe opened an American tour in Chicago, but the tear gas bomb was the first disruption of the performance.

The troupe, which ended its Chicago run with a matinee before moving on the Indianapolis, responded to the episode in the best "show must go on" tradition.

Firemen administered oxygen to a number of persons in the audience of 4,000, which fled to the streets and lobby to escape the gas. Then firemen ventilated the auditorium, the audience returned to its seats and the acrobats resumed the performance where they left off — with the antics of two huge lions, each made up of two men.

Police said the bomber left no sign that the act was meant as a political protest. One witness told police a man with a camera case left his seat near where the bomb went off shortly before the fumes began to fill the hall.

Winnipeg Futures Market Does A Brisk Trade In Gold

The New York Times

Winnipeg, Manitoba — Wheat is still king in Winnipeg, but buyers from many parts of the world are looking at a more glamorous commodity that has just come to the market in this windswept capital.

Since the middle of November, the Winnipeg Commodity Exchange has been doing a brisk trade in gold futures, attracting the attention of Swiss bankers, Middle East hoarders, European jewelers, and even, perhaps, some wistful American speculators, who cannot buy here without breaking the law.

In the first month of trading, contracts for about $15 million worth of gold have been sold on the floor of the exchange, a cavernous high-ceilinged room on the sixth floor of a nondescript office building in downtown Winnipeg. It is the world's only marketplace for gold futures.

To Soon To Say
"It's too soon to say what sort of trend there will be, but the trading so far has been as busy as we expected," said E.K. Huffman, the secretary-treasurer of the exchange.

The trading begins each morning at 9:15 when the Reuters News Agency wire flashes in the day's gold price from London, where it is already mid-afternoon. Brokers representing buyers and sellers begin the trading.

Like other commodity markets, the gold market is widely used by dealers—the companies that supply jewelers, for example, as a safeguard against future price fluctuations. But it gets much of its liquidity from speculators, who hope to make a fast profit.

"Certainly we have had a lot of both kinds of gold trading," Huffman said. "But we don't have any way of knowing how much of each, and it doesn't really matter to us."

Similarly, he finds it impossible to be certain that no American speculators have bought gold futures, which the United States Treasury has ruled would be a violation of the law forbidding Americans to own gold.

"It is the duty of members to take reasonable precautions," the exchange has formally declared, "to assure themselves" that buyers of gold futures are not violating the laws of their own countries.

Accordingly, brokers here and in other Canadian cities say that they ask the citizenship of a prospective gold futures buyer, and that if he is American, they turn him down. But an American eager to speculate in gold here could probably do so just by putting a couple of extra steps between himself and the exchange, as even Huffman conceded.

Broker Has Duty
"The broker has the duty to know his customer," He explained. "But, theoretically, a wealthy American could get a European buyer and then deal through a European bank which would place the order back to Winnipeg and the Lord alone would know about it."

The 85-year-old Winnipeg exchange, which also deals in less glittering commodities like barley and oats, began to look into gold futures trading soon after international agreements established the two-tier system of prices, in which gold held by governments and gold held privately have different values.

"As long as the price fluctuates and consumption exceeds availability, it seems sensible to have a futures market," Huffman explained. "And we're Canada's only commodity futures exchange, so it's logical for us."

Medical Team Finds Why Meats Bring On Headaches

The New York Times

New York — A medical student and a neurologist have solved the mystery of why a California man experienced headaches shortly after he ate hot dogs and cured-meat products.

The researchers, by testing the patient, themselves, the neurologist's wife, and other volunteers for the University of California Medical Center staff in San Francisco, discovered that the headaches were caused by nitrate. Food processors often add nitrite, a chemical, to reddish hot dogs and other cured meats that would otherwise appear gray-brown.

"One of the researchers said in an interview that they suspected that nitrite-induced headaches were a "reasonably common" medical problem whose cause was often overlooked by patients and doctors."

The findings add nitrite to the list of foods such as chocolate, citrus fruits and cheese, and food additives like monosodium glutamate that are capable of inducing headaches in certain patients.

Monosodium glutamate is the cause of the Chinese restaurant syndrome.

It is not known what biochemical factor distinguishes persons who are susceptible from those who do not get food-induced headaches, the researchers said in a report in Lancet, the British medical publication. Further, the researchers said, the biological mechanism by which nitrite causes headaches remains a mystery.

Prime Challenge

Seeking the scientific cause of headaches is one of the prime challenges in medical research. Among those who are studying the problem is Dr. Neil H. Raskin of the University of California Neurology Department, who co-authored the report with a medical student, William R. Henderson.

Raskin said that in recent years he had treated "several patients" who suffered from headaches of varying intensity after having eaten hot dogs and other cured-meat products like bacon, salami and ham.

As a result of the medical detective work involved in such cases, the researchers learned about the case of a 58-year-old retired inspector for the Federal Food and Drug Administration.

For seven years, the man, Roland Pianezzi, had avoided hot dogs and pastrami because he experienced steady headaches that generally lasted several hours after eating cured meats. Sometimes his face became flushed.

The inspector never had headaches except after eating hot dogs and cured meat products, Raskin said and added, "there was no other reason for his headaches."

Though, on the basis of his work for the FDA the inspector had suspected nitrite was the cause of his headaches, he had never gone so far as to confirm the hypothesis by eating the chemical sodium nitrite.

Experiments designed To prove the hypothesis, Raskin and Henderson designed a series of experiments to collect the evidence linking the nitrite with the headache.

Pianezzi, Raskin said, "took it as something to keep himself busy."

Every other day for a two-month period, Pianezzi volunteered to drink odorless, tasteless solutions that contained either sodium nitrite or sodium bicarbonate, which was used as a control. The solutions were identical in appearance so that the patient did not know which chemical he drank.

Small began serving a one-year sentence last week in the Dade County jail here on a possession of marijuana charge.

Eight of the 13 times he drank sodium nitrite, Pianezzi had headaches; on four of

Grain Trade Is Hurt By Car Shortage

Grand Island, Wyo. — In West Virginia's eastern panhandle, less than 100 miles from the nation's capital, farmers are strengthening security measures against gangs of rustlers who for three months have been stealing cattle at night.

Bob Brooks of Grand Island Grain said that company also has been having difficulty obtaining boxcars. He said the problem was the result of large grain shippers using cars as "storage" facilities.

A number of car are usually tied up at the major ports, he said, and in effect, become warehouses instead of transportation equipment.

Brooks said the firm has an estimated 150,000 bushels on the ground.

He said that much of this corn was waiting to be dried at the time that fuel supplies for grain dryers was curtailed.

However, Brooks said the firm isn't able to obtain enough boxcars to ship the grain that is being brought in from the fields and additional grain is being accumulated.

Taipei (UPI) — The ruling Kuomintang (Nationalist Party) won a vote of confidence in weekend elections for Taiwan's parliament and provincial assemblies, magistrates and mayors.

Political observers here attached great significance to the Kuomintang's sweeping victory since this was the first time the ruling party has been subjected to a nationwide plebiscite since the nation lost U.N. membership and since the growing diplomatic recognitions of China.

The party broke all its previous records and bagged all 20 mayor and magistrate posts at stake.

Of the 53 National Assembly seats to be filled by the election, the party took 38, and of the 36 legislative Yuan seats, the party won 19.

Cattle Rustlers Are Plaguing West Virginians

The New York Times

Charlestown, W. Va. — In West Virginia's eastern panhandle, less than 100 miles from the nation's capital, farmers are strengthening security measures against

"We believe the cattle thieves are selling these animals to small, independent retail meat outlets or at auctions in nearby states at $200 to $300 per head," he said.

"Some of them actually are slaughtering the cattle in the fields," State Agriculture Commissioner Gus R. Douglass said in disclosing that close to $30,000 worth of beef and dairy cattle had been stolen.

"West Virginia has no branding law. Identifying the animals has been difficult even if we do track them down."

Most of the 80 thefts in the last 90 days have occurred in Jefferson and Berkeley Counties, the leading dairy farming region in the state, situated in the narrow neck of land that borders on Maryland and Virginia.

"There are increased security measures on all farms at the moment," Douglass said. He would not elaborate.

The latest figures show 641 farms operating in Berkeley County and 434 in Jefferson County.

"Rustlers concentrate on young animals in the 300 pound class," Douglass said. "They rope or wrestle them to the ground, hog tie them and cart them away in trucks. But animals can sell for as much as $100,000 a head."

1972 Derailments Cost More Than $1,000,000

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

Derailements in Nebraska cost the five railroads that operate in the state a grand total of almost $1.1 million from January through September this year.

And that total does not take into account cost estimates for derailements in the state in the last three months.

Reports on those accidents have not yet been submitted to the Nebraska Public Service Commission (NPSC), formerly the State Railway Commission.

A further breakdown of statistics shows that damage to equipment of all five lines because of derailements cost about $806,375 for the nine-month period. Damage to tracks ran up an estimated total of $217,380.

UP Had Most

Union Pacific had the most mishaps with 19 to date, 14 of which have completed reports filed with NPSC. The delay between the time of derailment and filing is normal, an NPSC spokesman said.

Burlington Northern followed close behind with 13 reported and three other accidents in the interim reporting stage.

To date, including those reports not yet filed, Chicago & North Western had 12 derailements, Missouri Pacific had four, and Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific had three.

The number of derailements for Burlington and UP is not disproportionately high, because the two have the most miles of track and make the most runs in the state.

224 Cars

In derailements inclusive in the filed accident reports, 224 cars and cabooses left the tracks during the nine-month period. Those cars were among a total of 2,590 cars of trains involved in all derailements, and represent less than one per cent of those that could have been derailed.

NPSC reports also indicate that as speed rose, damage costs to tracks and equipment rose, and injuries were more likely to occur. Many of the derailements, though, happened in railroad yards at low speeds.

If there can be any good news among the 54 derailements and the resulting million-dollar damages, statistics indicate that the railroads have at least held the number of derailements at the same level or lower than in past years, with the exception of Union Pacific.

There has been a relative accidents in which train crews were at fault. The reports noted that those trainmen responsible were either fired or had their personal records penalized in a point accumulation system on which dismissals are based.

The other category of derailements causes is a miscellaneous group including, for example, rain loosening roadbeds and causing track spreading.

Besides the potential safety hazard to the public in derailements, Green said the railroads are perhaps more concerned than the public because derailements cost the railroads money.

But derailements cannot be measured in dollar figures alone. They are messy, they tear up track and ruin equipment. They close traffic lines and necessitate inconvenient rerouting. They damage costly loads. They sometimes cause deaths, and they mean future lost man-hours for those injured.

"There's little the commission can do," Green said, "except apply a little pressure."

What are the main causes of derailements? Can they be prevented?

More Freights

Considerably more freight trains derailed than do passenger trains, NPSC reports show. Those statistics result simply because Amtrak, the single passenger carrier in Nebraska, operates only two runs daily across the state, one east and one west. Freight trains comprise nearly all rail traffic in the state.

Mechanical failures cause most derailements, according to NPSC accident reports.

There are about 7,822 total miles of railroad track in Nebraska and even "if they're inspected daily, that still doesn't eliminate the possibility of mechanical failure," Green said.

The railroads are working to prevent them. At Burlington-Northern, for example, teams inspect their tracks visually every day, according to William A. McKenzie, public relations manager.

In addition, McKenzie said, Burlington sends out a five-man safety team after each derailment to evaluate the accident. Team members, he said, include experts in safety, engineering, mechanics and operations.

When possible causes of derailements appear not to fall into an identifiable or normal category, the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) looks into possible sabotage, according to Fletcher Thompson, special agent in charge of Nebraska and Iowa.

"It's a federal violation to willfully derail or attempt to derail a train involved in interstate or foreign commerce," Thompson said, adding that such a conviction carries a $10,000 fine or 20 years imprisonment or both.

Crippled Viet Killer Cop, 'The Cobra,' Mellows

By HUGH A MULLIGAN
Saigon (AP)—The tough killer-cop they called "The Cobra" has become as gentle as a kitten.

Maj. Gen. Nguyen Ngoc Loan, remembered by the world because of a famous photograph that showed him shooting Viet Cong prisoner in a Saigon street, now spends his days on visits to orphanages and children's hospitals with candy and ice cream bought from his own pocket.

"If he sees a camera anywhere around, he turns the jeep around and heads back to his house at Tan Son Nhut," said a Vietnamese colleague in the Defense Ministry. "Loan doesn't care a damn any more what the world thinks of him."

The scene is always the same. Loan arrives unannounced in a three-jeep convoy loaded down with cases of soda and boxes of candy and ice cream. He braces himself, and bent over his canes, he hobbles among the children while his aides distribute the goodies.

"He's been here a couple of times," said the Rev. Robert Crawford, a priest from Philadelphia who runs a home for 85 youngsters crippled with polio. "The kids never saw so much ice cream in their lives. Loan's face just lights up as he moves among them. Each time he comes, the nuns stand by in horror, figuring they'll be up all night looking after dozens of tummy ache cases."

"He always seems reluctant to leave. His aides tell us the kids, the crippled ones, are his world now. He understands them."

Still independent and furtive as in the days when he was chief of South Vietnam's national police, Loan declines all interviews on his charity work with crippled children and steadfastly refuses to have reporters or photographers accompany him on his hospital visits.

"If he sees a camera anywhere around, he turns the jeep around and heads back to his house at Tan Son Nhut," said a Vietnamese colleague in the Defense Ministry.

A Vietnamese nun with the Sisters of Charity, who watched him pick out the most deformed child in her ward to spoon ice cream to, thought perhaps the general was "lonely like that little girl. It's more than just the friendship of two crippled people; it's as if only they understand each other."

Fierce and shrewd, Loan got his nickname "the Cobra" for his swift, ruthless suppression of the 1968 Buddhist riots in Saigon, Hué and Da Nang that threatened to topple the regime of his close friend, then-Prime Minister Nguyen Cao Ky.

Leading the way himself,

Loan swooped down on the pagodas where arms were being stockpiled, in the same secret way he now swoops down on orphanages and hospitals.

At one time he was the most powerful politician in Vietnam outside Independence Palace itself. In addition to heading the national police, he was director of military security with power to arrest and imprison people without a warrant. Loan moved so aggressively in cutting down enemies of Nguyen Van Thieu and his vice presidential running mate Ky in the months before the 1967 presidential elections that the U.S.

Embassy maneuvered behind the scenes to curtail his power.

Those were the days when the poly-poly Loan gloried in another title, "the Hatchet."

His face and that of the Viet Cong prisoner he killed at point-blank range with a revolver in the 1968 Tet offensive, became known throughout the world through the Pulitzer Prize photo taken that February day by Associated Press photographer Eddie Adams.

Three months later, in the mini-Tet offensive, Loan performed as an example to his men by moving forward alone, ahead of a tank, down an alley of fishing shacks where Viet Cong snipers were held off and firing on the buildings of the Agriculture Ministry on the outskirts of Saigon.

Now saddled with his infirmities, the man who once was an air force general leading Skyraider bombing raids has a title, an office and a make-work job in the Saigon Defense Ministry.

Sources in the ministry say Loan's condition has worsened in recent months, that his legs have begun to atrophy and his black moos have become blacker.

The tough cop, they say, lives only for those kids on crutches and braces in the homes and hospitals all over town. Especially the ones as hopeless and lonely as himself.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.
